120 White Hostages Are Rescued in Congo

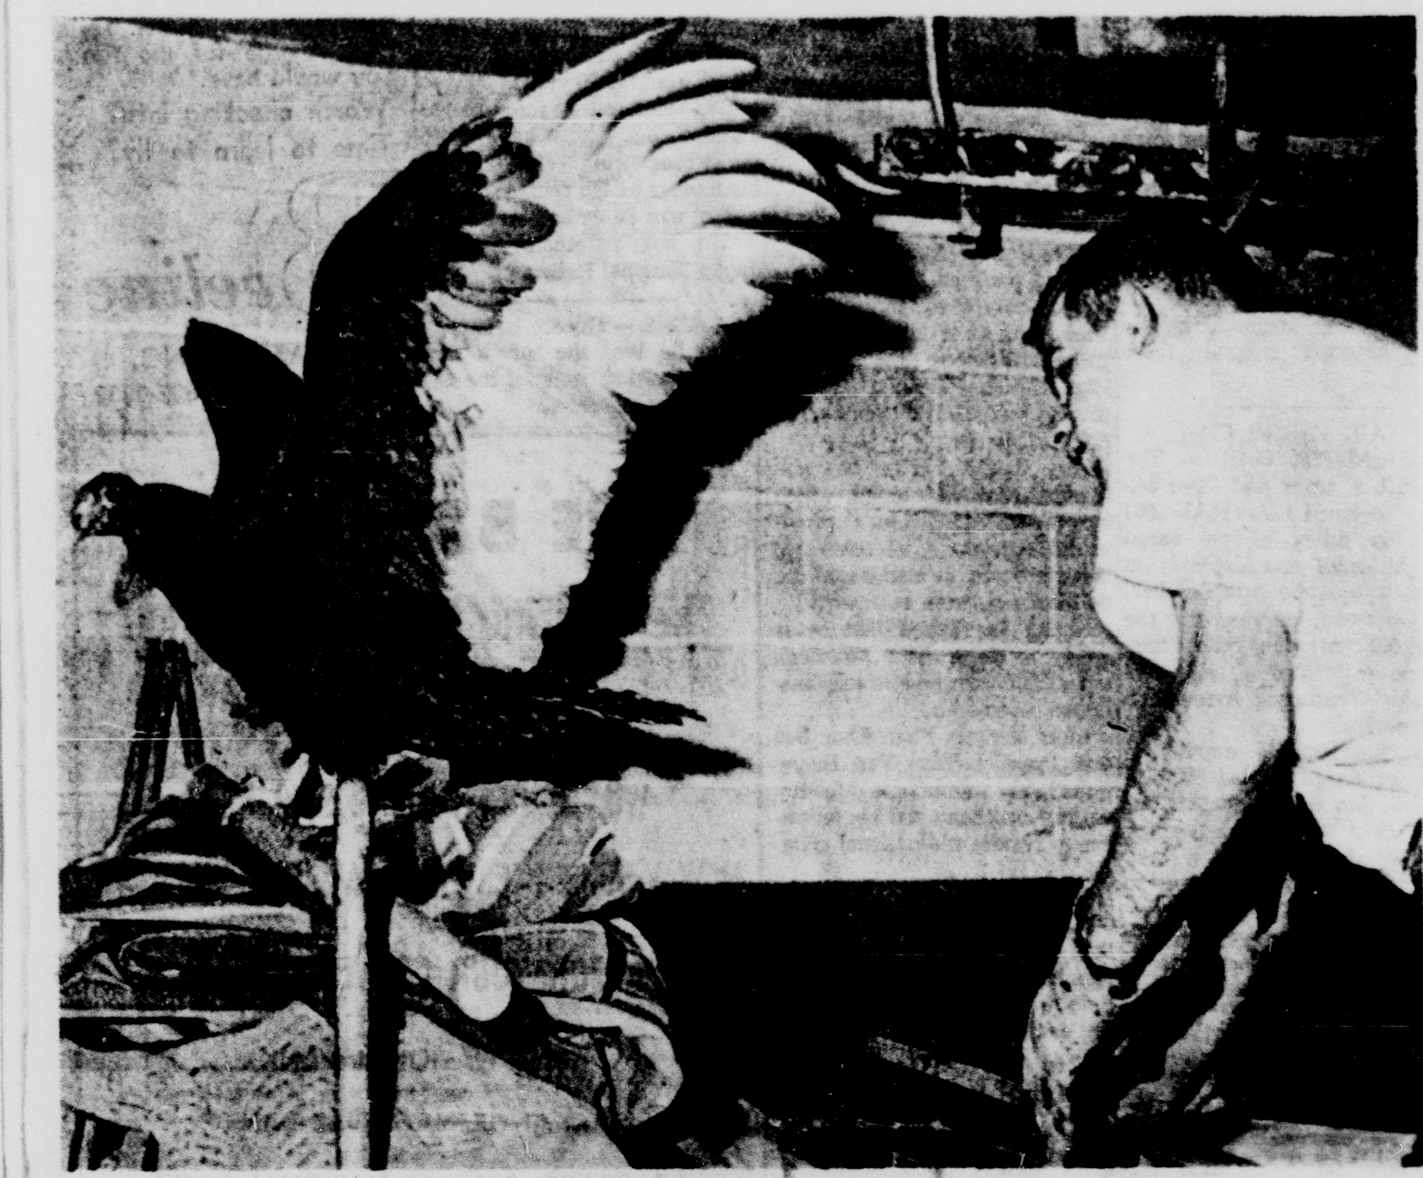
LEOPOLDVILLE, (UPI) — Congolese troops led by mercenaries today rescued about 120 white hostages from the rebels in the northeastern Congo town of Wamba, sources close to army headquarters said.

Wamba was one of the last towns in the northeastern Congo known to hold a concentration of whites held hostage by the Communist-backed rebels.

Preliminary reports said nothing about the condition of the whites. Nor did it mention whether any massacres had taken place, as had been feared.

Missionary William McChesney, the last American unaccounted for in rebel territory, was believed to have been held at Wamba. There was no immediate word on him.



WANTS TO FLY LIKE BIRD—College student Stephen Moore is shown with Leonardo, the buzzard, in the Seaford, Delaware, basement laboratory of scientist John Seney. The two are using the buzzard in human flight experiments. They want to construct wings with which Stephen can take off like a bird — from the ground. They first want to study how the buzzard flies. ## College Boy Wants to Flap Wings and Fly

By STAN BENJAMIN

SEAFORD, Del. (AP) — Flying by flapping your own wings is for the birds, but it may not be much longer.

A practical-minded scientist named John S. Seney, 50, of Seaford, and a college junior, Stephen Moore, 19, of Fairfax, Va., have set out to determine whether or not the age-old dream of man flying like a bird can be made a reality.

Seney and Moore are hoping tha electronic instruments, and a bird — A buzzard named Leonardo — will teach them how.

Leonardo gets his name from the many-sided genius, Leonardo da Vinci, who tried, but failed, to solve the challenge of flight back in the early 16th century.

The odd thing, as Seney sees it, is that so little effort has been made in modern times to follow up Da Vinci's idea.

"Steve contacted the Langley Field people, the biggest flight development center in the world, and consulted their librarian, and we just couldn't find anythong on the actual dynamics of bird flight."

That's where Leonardo the buzzard flies in.

Seney, who heads the electromechanical research laboratory of the DuPont Company here, plans to start Leonardo flying while electronic instruments and high-speed cameras record how he does it and how hard he works at it.

Then the experts, medical and mechanical, will be asked to analyze the anatomy of a healthy young man — Moore — and help figure out what he could do to convert his strength into effective wing-flapping.

Preliminary calculations indicate Moore, a 6-foot-2, 175-pound chemical engineering major at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, probably would have to flap wings with a span of about 36 feet, and a width of about 6 feet.

"It won't be just a simple matter of waving his arms," Seney warns. "He may have to work his jaws, his neck muscles, just about every muscle he can contract, to channel all his energy into the tremendous effort it will take just to get off the ground."

There won't be anything as spectacular as a carefree leap off a hilltop, however. The first flutter of Moore's wings will be the hard way: from a standing start.

"If Steve can't get off the ground under his own power, he won't get off the ground at all — and we will not have accomplished what we set out to accomplish," says Seney.

Russians Reported Ready To Aid Rebels in Congo

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — Russia is capping the large quantities of ground weapons it is busily supplying the missionary-murdering Congolese rebels by preparing to equip them with a powerful combat airforce.

Accompanied by Soviet pilots and technicians, MIG-19 fighter planes and smaller jets, comparable to the U.S.-made T-28 jet trainers of the Congolese army, are arriving at an airfield in the vicinity of Juba, in southern Sudan, 150 miles from the Congolese border.

Intelligence also reports the appearance there of airforce personnel from Egypt, Algeria and possibly Communist-ruled Cuba. Egypt and Algeria are principal relay points for the flood of Red arms pouring into the strife-lacerated Congo.

The mystery-cloaked talks between "Che" Guevara, economic czar of the Castro regime, and Algeria's Communist-leaning dictator Ben Bella, are deemed by intelligence to be related to this latest ominous Congo development. Guevara flew directly to Algeria following his recent anti-U.S. harangue before the United Nations General Assembly.

President Johnson and Secretary Rusk have discussed this dire threat with G. McMurtrie Godley, U.S. ambassador to the Congo, now in Washington for consultations.

Godley has stressed the decisive role of Premier Tshombe's small airforce in the tense fighting, characterizing it as tipping the scales in favor of the government. Without this crucial air support, Godley believes the outcome to date of the Congo conflict would be very different.

This view was significantly underlined by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in his recent conferences with Secretary Rusk.

Pointedly alluding to the strong likelihood that the rebels soon would have combat planes, Gromyko proposed "joint action" be undertaken to solve the Congo dilemma by setting up a coalition government that would include rebel leaders with known Communist ties.

As contemplated by Gromyko, such "joint action" would be initiated by Russia, the U.S., and members of the African

Artillery Used To Shoot Down Dangerous Snow

By United Press International

The Colorado State Highway Department pulled out its 75-millimeter artillery pieces Monday and began zeroing in on dangerous masses of snow which threatened to sweep down upon the state's mountain passes.

Two of Southwestern Colorado's major mountain passes—Wolf Creek, 10,850 feet and Red Mountain, 11,018 feet — were closed by avalanches.

Heavy snow continued to fall at most mountain areas and was forecast to continue falling for the next five days. A weekend storm dropped 30 inches at Aspen where the Kennedy family is spending a skiing vacation, 22 inches at Squaw Pass and 16 inches at Crested Butte.

Drifts were so deep in the Crested Butte area that officials said a city bulldozer struck and damaged a car buried underneath the piled - up snow.

Up to three inches of snow had fallen in parts of western Wyoming early this morning and U.S. Weather Bureau officials predicted it would continue there also.

The temperatures throughout most lower elevations areas in Colorado were in the 20s and 30s.

Rail Union Launches Walkout

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen announced a systemwide strike against the Southern Railway today, effective at 6 a.m. EST.

J. W. Jennings, vice president of the AFLCIO union, said the walkout resulted from a company move to operate locomotives without firemen. He said both sides had agreed to meet Jan. 13, 1965, to negotiate the issue, and called the company move a breach of contract.

Headquarters of the 8,100-mile line declined immediate comment. A spokesman said there would be a statement as soon as information had been rounded up.

Reports of picketing came in from various points along the 14-state Southern system, which services such cities as Washington, Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis and Louisville.

"Although the carrier began violating our contract at 12:01 a.m. Dec. 26, the brotherhood refrained from strike action until today, so that holiday travelers would not be stranded," Jennings said in his statement.

He said the carrier could have precipitated the crisis as early as Nov. 13, 1964, when procedures of the Railway Labor Act would have permitted either

Syrian Troops Open Fire on Israel Tractors

TIBERIAS, Israel (UPI) — Syria border troops opened fire today on Israeli tractors sowing fields on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, an Israeli military spokesman said.

Armored tractors carried on the work despite the Syrian firing, the spokesman said. He said U.N. truce observers had authorized the Israelis to sow the land, which was plowed under Syrian fire in October.

"Our forces returned the fire," the spokesman said.

Leo the Lion Given Five More Days

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP) — Leo the lion has been given five more days at home by the Abington Township commissioners.

The commissioners sent that notice Monday to Howard Sautter, who keeps Leo in his backyard.

The notice followed an ordinance passed Dec. 10 prohibiting township residents from keeping "animals known to have a wild nature or disposition." It became effective last Sunday.

Richard Mailman, Sautter's attorney, said he is counseling his client not to get rid of the lion. He plans to appeal the case.

The dispute began when many of Sautter's neighbors signed a petition stating that the lion frightened and disturbed them with his roaring.

Wife's Kiss Brings Him Back to Life

LONDON (AP) — Kathlyn Strowger, 24, gave her husband the longest kiss of their three-year marriage Monday and saved his life.

George Strowger, 26, collapsed with electric shock while adjusting a television set.

"I hardly knew what to do but guessed I had to breathe air into his mouth," said Mrs. Strowger.

"His heart had stopped and he wasn't breathing but after a minute or two he began to come round."

At a hospital in Wimbledon a doctor said Strowger was recovering and added: "But for the kiss he wouldn't be alive now."

Massive Cleanup Begun In Flood-Ravaged Areas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A mighty force of men and machines shouldered the task today of cleaning up after the West's Christmas week floods, called by the governor of California "a major American disaster."

A massive airlift hoisted food and emergency repair equipment into stricken northwestern California.

Snow and falling temperatures added to the misery of refugees from high water and threatened again to block helicopter delivery of food bundles to hundreds marooned in the high California timber country for the ninth straight day.

Between 400 and 500 persons were isolated in vestpocket lumbering and mining communities along the Klamath and Salmon rivers in extreme Northern California. They have been cut off since Dec. 21. Civil defense workers said they undoubtedly were getting desperate for food.

Gangsters Rob Armored Truck of $223,000

By EDMUND D'MOCH

CHICAGO (AP) — Three bandits overpowered two priests and a Brink's guard in a rectory Monday, looted an armored truck and got away in what looked like a virtual replay of last week's half-million dollar holdup in Paterson, N.J.

The guard was hospitaized with a head injury, but neither of the priests at the Divine Saviour Roman Catholic church in suburban Norridge was injured.

Officials of Brink's Inc. estimated the haul at $223,000.

The gunmen, wearing Halloween masks and a ski hood, bound two priests in a Roman Catholic church rectory in suburban Norridge late Monday, then jumped the Brinks guard when he arrived to collect the church's Sunday collections.

One gunman put on the guard's uniform and gained admittance to the armored truck outside the Divine Savior church. He slugged the driver, drove the truck to a nearby cemetery and the three men fled with the money in a car.

In the Paterson robbery, three gunmen wearing Halloween masks robbed a bank truck while it was picking up the Sunday collection at St. Anthony's

$299,000 Robbed From Buffalo City Treasury

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two gunmen robbed the city treasurer's office of an estimated $299,000 today, police reported.

One of the pair beat the city treasurer, Melvin Elliott, on the head as Elliott sought to stall them in the office.

Most of the money was believed to have been in checks.

Patrolman Thomas J. Wright, assigned to the office, was in another part of the office at the time.

When told that the gunmen had fled with a money bag, Wright ran outside.

"I got outside in time to see the last of the two entering the car and the car pulling away, and managed to get one shot at the getaway machine," he told a reporter. "I think I hit it."

Mae D. Wicks, a cashier, told police:

"I was holding the money bag. The count was $299,000, mostly checks, when the two men confronted me from outside the counter. I was ordered to hand the bag over and I dropped to the floor. I saw one had a nickel-plated revolver."

Socialist Wins Presidency in Italian Crisis

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP) — Giuseppe Saragat, 66, first Socialist president in Italian history, swore faith to the nation and the constitution today as a 101-gun salute thundered over Rome from the Janiculum Hill.

The portly former foreign minister took his oath of office standing stiffly erect before a combined session of Parliament, which elected him to a seven-year term Monday on the 21st ballot. He succeeds Christian Democrat Antonio Segni, who resigned because of illness.

Atlhough Saragat is pro-NATO and anti-Communist, the Communists' 253 votes were the decisive factor. They gave him a total of 646, well beyond the 482 necessary.

The four parties in Moro's coalition — Christian Democrats, Socialists, Republicans and Saragat's Democratic Socialists — could have elected him, but about 150 Christian Democrats turned in blank ballots.

It was a double defeat for the Christian Democrats, Italy's largest and dominant party since World War II. They failed to elect Giovanni Leone, their official candidate, and they couldn't keep Communist votes from being decisive. The result underlined the shaky position of the divided party.

Il Popolo, the Christian Democratic organ, warned today of the "grave phenomenon of internal indiscipline, about which the party must take an attentive and severe examination of conscience."

The independent newspaper Il Messaggero commented that "Christian democracy must rediscover its unity, lacking which it loses its function as democracy's stronghold and as

Ousted Fountain Police Chief to Fight Dismissal

Ousted Fountain Police Chief William Soltwedel said he plans to file a petition in District Court this morning, protesting what he claims was wrongful dismissal by the Town Council.

Soltwedel's attorney, Paul Evans, said this morning that charges may not be filed, pending other developments. He said Soltwedel may not have been legally discharged.

Councilmen Monday night presented Soltwedel with formal charges for his dismissal.

Soltwedel, who was with the force six years and chief six months, was fired Dec. 21 at an unannounced special Council meeting.

Officers William Miller and Guy Nugent were included in the pre - Christmas firing, for which no reasons had been given.

Charges against Soltwedel, read to citizens who packed the Town Hall, alleged the former police chief:

—Failed to enforce town ordinances, including those pertaining to dogs.

—Did not "properly" train his subordinate officers.

—Failed to police the town park and business district, especially after sunset.

—Did not attend Council meetings and make reports.

Evans, who also represents fired Patrolman Miller, presented the Council with a petition signed by about 80 persons, soon after the meeting began at 7:30 p.m.

After much talk, councilmen set 7:30 p.m. Jan. 11 for a pub-

Malaysia Turns Down U.S. Loan At 5 Per Cent

By TONY ESCODA

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Criticism of the United States welled up today over the terms of a military loan offer to aid Malaysia in its defense against Indonesia.

The government said Tuesday night it has rejected the offer because the United States wanted to charge 5 per cent interest. The loan, to run from five to seven years, was to be used for buying American planes and other military supplies.

"We have to reject this kind of assistance," Deputy Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak told the House of Representatives.

Denver Judge Named for Maestas Trial

Denver District Court Judge Mitchell B. Johns will preside at the trial of Henry Eddie Maestas who has been charged with aggravated robbery and conspiracy.

In El Paso County District Court Monday afternoon, Deputy District Attorney Dick Webster and counsel for the defense Roger Hunt both agreed to have the Denver judge hear the case assuming he was available.

Maestas, 28, 513 Walnut St. has had his trial date continued approximately five times. The last occasion was Dec. 17 and although jury selection was into its second day, Judge William M. Calvert was forced to disqualify himself on grounds of possible prejudice.

Judge Calvert was on the bench during the trial of one of Maestas's co - defendants who was sentenced by the judge to 30 to 40 years in the State Peitentiary for his part in the offense.

Also on Jan. 17 Maestas indicated he would be willing to plead guilty to an amended charge of simple robbery and conspiracy which the district attorney's office was willing to file but the judge refused to accept the lesser charge which carried a possible conviction of

Nasser to Get Wheat After Denouncing U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only five days after Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser had told America in effect to take its aid and "go to hell," the United States is going through with plans to provide him with $16,994,00 worth of surplus wheat.

The Agriculture Department issued an authorization Monday for the purchase of that amount of wheat under the Food-for-Peace program.

The department will pay cash for the wheat in the open market, and Egypt will pay for the grain in its own currency, a part of which will be spent in the United Arab Republic.

Although arrangements for the transaction had been made some time ago, the United States still could have stopped the deal after Nasser's speech of last week.

He accused U.S. Ambassador Lucius Battle of trying to put economic pressure on Egypt and told a cheering crowd in Port Said: "Anyone who does not like our attitude can drink

Stormy Weather Slows Search For Two Airmen

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The search for two airmen missing since Christmas Eve on a flight from Colorado to Phoenix has been slowed by stormy weather.

Aboard were Airman Darrell Lowrey, 19, of Phoenix, and the pilot of the rented light plane, S. Sgt. Ralph Todd Jr., of Starr, S. C., both stationed at Lowry Air Force Base near Denver.

They were last seen Thursday night in leaving a refueling stop at Show Low, Ariz.

Since then Civil Air Patrol planes from four squadrons have flown as many as 36 sorties a day over the mountains between Show Low and Phoenix.

Hampered by rain, wind and snow, the CAP limited its air search Monday to two flights. There was more such weather today.

Moscow Version of My Fair Lady Termed 'Piracy'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian version of "My Fair Lady" is a hit in Moscow, but the American owners of the famed musical claim it's piracy.

"The show was a great success," the Soviet news agency Tass announced after the opening Monday night of "Maya Prekasnaya Lady," as it's called here.

The hit song was "Get Me to the Church on Time," the same number that stopped the show when the U.S. State Department sent an American company here in 1960.

But it was the wild Cockney dancing that wowed the Russians more than the words and music by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe.

Western spectators found that the Russian translation did little for the original lyrics. "The rain in Spain falls mainly in the plains" became "Carl stole corals from Cora."

The adaptors threw in "The Night They Invented Champagne" from "Gigi," another Lerner-Loewe show, to fill the gap left because the score had been shortened.

The Columbia broadcasting System, which controls foreign rights to "My Fair Lady," and Vice President Michael Burke charged in New York that Soviet authorities had not requested nor received permission to put on the show. Burke said CBS lawyers had prepared a protest to Moscow.

The Russians are not signers of international copyright conventions and usually ignore such protests.

Tickets for the show have been bought out for weeks ahead by audiences apparently anxious for a change from such usual fare as "The Merry Widow."

Blind Lawyer Begins Career As a Judge

By JAMES E. DWER

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — Starting the new year, Judge Allan L. Stouder is beginning his first term on the Illinois Appellate Court and his 19th year of total blindness.

Judge Stouder, born 40 years ago in Huntington, Ind., lost his sight in a chemical explosion in 1946 while working his way through Chicago's John Marshall Law School.

"After the four months in the hospital," Stouder recalled, "I spent another month resting."

During this period, he and his wife, Marian, decided to go through law school together.

They began attending afternoon classes. Mornings were reserved for studying, the judge said, with his wife reading aloud while he listened.

"There are some law books written in Braille, but none of the ones I used," the judge said in an interview. "Marian took notes for herself and for me and then read them aloud, along with the text material.

"I could type and took examinations that way," he said. "Someone would read me the questions and I would type the answers."

The Stouders graduated from John Marshall in 1949 and settled in Kankakee.

"Those were lean years," Judge Stouder said.

Handling mostly civil cases, he had his wife read decisions and opinions to him when the material was not available in Braille.

In the courtroom, Stouder felt around to become familiar with the surroundings.

"It's not as much of a problem as it might sound," he said.

After 10 years of practicing law, he entered politics. A Democrat, he lost a race for county state's attorney in 1960, but in 1962 he was elected county judge.

He was elected to the Illinois Appellate Court on Nov. 3.

"I enjoyed being a trial court judge, but I think I will like the appellate court even more," said Stouder.

Johnson Prefers Bourbon for Dinner

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson is known to like a scotch and soda on occasion although his doctor says Johnson prefers a bit of bourbon and water before dinner.

Rear Adm. George G. Burkley, White House physician, named bourbon in answering a questionaire from newsmen Monday. Maybe his information was based on yuletide observations around the LBJ Ranch.

Visitors there have been offered cake and egg nog, and the President's understanding is that egg nog is made mostly with bourbon around these parts.

AIR CARGO UP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The eleven U.S. trunk and three all-cargo airlines flew 103,151,000 (m) ton miles of air cargo (freight, mail and express) in domestic operations in October, a 22.1 per cent increase over the 84,514,000 (m) ton miles they carried in October of 1963, says the Air Transport Association of America.

For the first 10 months of 1964, air cargo totaled 860,353,000 (m) ton miles, up 22.2 per cent over the corresponding 1963 period.

Viet Chieftain Seeks to End U.S. Deadlock

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, Viet Nam's military commander, and his general staff flew to the seaside resort of Cap St. Jacques today for conferences apparently aimed at ending the deadlock with the United States.

The United States has been holding back an estimated $600 million offer of expanded aid for Viet Nam since Khanh and his generals ousted the civilian High National Council on Dec. 20 and arrested a number of political leaders.

The United States has demanded that the council, which was South Viet Nam's provisional legislature, be reinstated in some form. It also wants the political prisoners released.

Khanh has hinted that he is ready to do without American aid rather than give in to Washington's demands.

Chief of State Phan Khac Suu and Premier Tran Van Huong issued a communique Monday calling on Khanh and his followers to restore the national council.

Suu and Huong were not ousted in the military purge, but they said it had shaken the foundation of their government. Both were named by the High National Council.

The Education Ministry announced today that it would suspend students from classes for a year and bar them from taking examinations if they indulge in political activities at school or incite students to demonstrate.

Asked what makes him tick, Carl Reiner, creator - producer of "The Dick Van Dyke Show," replies — truthfully — "My father was a watchmaker."

Kuwait's Ruler Asks His Brother to Stay

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Kuwait's ruler, Sheikh Abdullah Salem El Sabah, today reappointed his younger brother, Crown Prince Sabah Salem As Sabah, premier and asked him to form a new government for the oil-rich little emirate on the Persian Gulf.

Sheikh Sabah and his 15-man Cabinet resigned Monday night under parliamentary pressure after only 22 days in office. The crown prince has been Kuwait's premire since it became a parliamentary monarchy after its independence from Britain in 1962.

The outgoing government was stymied by a boycott by 31 deputies of Kuwait's 50-man National Assembly. They said the Cabinet did not adequately represent parliament.

Boy Took Wrong Train 20 Years Ago

TOKYO (AP) — "I must have taken the wrong train," Hirosuke Sasaki said as he was reunited with his mother after 20 years.

Twenty years ago, Sasaki, then 6, sneaked out of his home in the port of Kure and boarded a train with plans to surprise relatives in Osaka.

He got lost.

Railway employes tried to retrace his route but failed. Eventually they put him in an orphanage where he lived until the end of the war. Then he was adopted and taken to Tokyo.

Three years ago Sasaki began a painstaking effort to locate his mother.

Monday he visited Kure. An aged city official recalled that a woman called recently to the city registrar's office and asked that her son be declared legally dead since he had not been heard from for 20 years.

"It's embarrassing for me to admit it, but I must have taken the wrong train," Sasaki told his mother at the reunion.

Why was he embarrassed?

"I'm now an employe of the Japan National Railway."

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

Hollywood — Chuck Walters, with M-G-M 22 years (his last was "Molly Brown"), moves to Columbia for Sol Siegel's big slice of America, "Chautauqua," which may be renamed "Big America." Dick Van Dyke is to star. Walters' long-time partner, Roger Edens, is in New York discussing producing the Barbra Streisand TV special with Chuck direcing. "What we should do is the story of her life," says Walters. "It's rags to riches and Cinderella all over again—and it happened before our eyes. Uusually when they do someone's life story, half the people don't remember who they are. Barbra's current, and exciting talent." . . . Liza Minnelli was told that "Roman Holiday" was postponed, so makes her Broadway bow May 1 in "Flora, the Red Menace," a musical directed by George Abbott and co-produced by Abbott and Harold Prince.

Frank Sinatra has leased Anita Louise Adler's big Holmby Hills house and already moved in . . . Carol Lynley bought her own Christmas gift — a Chagall to hang over the fireplace . . . Karl Malden moves to the Disney studio to star in "Bull Whip Griffin," as soon as he finishes that poker game, "Cincinnati Kid," at Metro . . . I wonder if Eddie Fisher knows that Liz Taylor changed the name of their adopted baby (the little crippled girl) from Fisher to Burton. However, Liza, Mike Todd's daughter, is still Liza Fisher, altho Eddie wasn't permitted to see her while she was here. Side by side in a local newspaper a picture of Liz wearing a $6,000 mink skiing outfit with Burton bringing up the rear carrying her dog, and a family portrait of the Ozzie Nelsons including the grandchildren. A study in contrasts.

Paula Prentiss finished stripping in Paris with Peter Sellers, Peter O'Toole, and Capucine in "What's New, Pussycat?" and flew to her hometown, Tulsa, for Christmas; then here to catch her husband, Dick Benjamin's "Barefoot in the Park," opening at the Huntington Hartford . . . I hear from England that Carl Foreman is writing the screen script of "Dylan," which Alec Guinness played in New York . . . Albert Finney is back in London. He had quite a siege in Tahiti . . . All actors want to play a man of the cloth, and Sammy Davis is no exception. He's agreed to star in "Brother Bertram" for Producer Marty Poll. Sammy plays a mink.

Michael Ansara (TV's Co - choise) goes to Darthmouth to stage a one-man exhibit of his oils in the school's new 7 million dollar center for performing and fine arts . . . Vincent Price bought 35 of Richard Whorf's paintings for Sears, so he's busy doing more. Whorf's perennial favorites with actors are Sardi's in the rain—and snow. Incidentally, the Prices' 3-year-old daughter is not only beautiful but uses big words like her father . . . Liz Ashley played cupid in the Bullets Durgom - Marian Brody marriage. She told George she had a girl for him, introduced them in May, and eloped with them to Las Vegas in December. They'd planned a big wedding with 200 guests. "But when it got to the dyed-shoes-to-match stage, we decided to escape," Durgom said.

side to move on its own on the issue.

In addition to the issue of operating locomotives without firemen — or helpers as they are frequently called since diesel units became common — the union is pushing demands for changes in rules on overtime pay, away-from-home expenses, wage and work guarantees, paid holidays and other matters. Jennings said the union would have been free to strike over those matters since Nov. 13 also.

The Southern was not a party to the national dispute over diesel helpers, going alone in its dealings with the men. The upshot of the national dispute, in which Congress took a hand, was an arbitration ruling that the railroads might eliminate up to 90 per cent of the helper-firemen on diesels, in yard and freight service, beginning last May 7.

In the meantime, Jennings said, Southern made its own demand on the union for revision of the agreement which required helpers on all locomotives. The National Mediation Board pulled out of the dispute Oct. 13, leaving both sides free to act a month later.

R. M. Gambrell of Birmingham, Ala., the union's chairman on the Southern, estimated the strike would directly affect 1,200 locomotive helpers on that line and its subsidiaries, including engineers on the Georgia & Florida Railroad where the union is bargaining agent.

The union estimated Southern has about 16,000 employes altogether.

lic hearing on the petition, in the Town Hall.

In the middle of the meeting, Patrolman Bud Teich dashed out the door on a duty call. He is the town's remaining police protection — until new men can be mobilized.

Evans said the signatures on the petition was a number equal to a third of the voters in the last town election. He said additional signatures were being collected.

The council announced charges against Soltwedel and set the public hearing date on advice from Town Attorney Fillmore Gibson.

The Council took no action on Evans' request that Soltwedel and Miller be reinstated, pending the hearing.

"They certainly should be on salary at this time," Evans commented.

Gibson pointed out, "The town board should have the power to discharge the people who work for it — and that includes me."

Evans maintained that Soltwedel should have not been removed except for "misconduct or malfeasance."

"I think all you have to prove is that he didn't render satisfactory service to the board," said Gibson.

While the attorneys were making statements, they were interrupted by numerous derogatory comments directed at the Council from the audience.

Will Claiborne, Fountain land developer and builder, asked the Council:

"Why didn't you let them turn in their resignations?"

When Attorney Gibson suggested this was still a possibility, Evans countered:

"At this moment he (Soldwedel) is not going to give the board the satisfaction of resigning."

He added that the Council's charges were "vague" and "impossible to answer at any hearing."

Council adjourned after [illegible]ing to change its meeting time to first and third Mondays of the month, starting February.

Massive Cleanup Begun In Flood-Ravaged Areas

Yreka, Calif., near the Oregon border loaded for mercy missions but unable to take off because of snow and icing conditions.

"We get a three-hour break in the weather," said Yreka Civil Defense chief Bill Sowle, "and you're going to see the damndest airlift out of here you've ever seen.

"This is very, very rugged, mountainous country. In some areas we'll have to evacuate and in others we'll have to drop supplies. We have a report of 14 children in one house at Oak Bottom 70 miles west of here on the Klamath. I'm concerned about those people and I'm concerned about the people on whom we have no reports at all.

"A Jeep carrying four people with supplies left for Scotts Bar on the Scott River Sunday morning at 7 and we haven't heard from them."

The missing four are Tom Payne, his wife Cassie and brother Pat, and Don Reynolds, all residents of the area.

Roughly the northern third of California, all Oregon and 14 counties in Washington had been declared a disaster area, enabling the region to receive special government assistance.

Uncounted thousands of men were at work in the three coast states, and Idaho and Nevada, also hit by floods, beginning the restoration of roads and highways, railroad service, and communications and power lines.

Many Northern California contractors halted work on construction projects and sent their men and heavy equipment to the aid of state, county and city crews in the mop-up operations.

California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown made a low-level helicopter tour of part of the stricken area Monday and called the devastation "a major American disaster."

Frank Dryden, deputy director of the Office of Emergency Planning, and other Washington officials inspected flood ravaged areas in both Califoria and Oregon and carried a report on the situation to President Johnson.

"Not a minute is being wasted in getting reconstruction projects under way," Dryden said.

"President Johnson has ordered that the entire broad program of federal disaster aid be placed at your disposal, just as it was for Alaskans after last spring's earthquake."

Surgeon General Luther Terry said the U.S. Public Health Service was already at work with local and state health officials to prevent waterborne and food-borne diseases.

Rex Whitten, administrator of the Bureau of Public Roads, said 63 per cent of the money for restoration of federal aid highways would be provided.

Gene Foley of the Small Business Administration said disaster loans will be available to homeowners, businessmen and non-profit institutions whose property was damaged.

California's property loss was estimated at between $200 million and $220 million by Office of Emergency Planning and Small Business Administration regional officials. Rep. Don Clausen, whose district bore the brunt of the onslaught, said the total economic impact of the disaster may run between $300 million and $500 million.

"This is something that will be measured over the next five to ten years," Clausen said.

Washington Gov. Albert Rosellini asked for $1 million in federal funds for immediate relief. State and federal officials estimated the state's storm damage at at least $7 million.

Oregon officials said they had not yet been able to total the widespread property loss in that state.

Flood damage in Nevada's Douglas County was estimated at $3 million by Leroy Wilcox, director of emergency planning for the state Civil Defense agency.

In their flight over battered northern California, Gov. Brown and the federal officials saw:

Mud deserts that were dairy farms — a few surviving cattle grazing on remnant fodder fields — U.S. highway 101 broken up into slabs — highway bridges broken in two or missing — railroad tracks slumping into river courses — a triangular field that was the town of Metropolitan, some 40 miles south of Eureka. The Eel River on a rampage had cut a new channel through the town — 200 people huddling in a logging shed at Stafford — houses reduced to piles of splintered lumber.

"It is the worst disaster in this state in my six years as governor," Brown said. "It is a major American disaster."

Permanent restoration is of prime importance, the governor told newsmen. He said this might require relocation of some communities and watershed projects to prevent future disasters.

Armed forces aircraft from Northern California bases hauled 150 tons of equipment and 60 tons of cattle feed to Eureka distribution centers Monday and were back on the job today.

U.S. 6th Army headquarters at San Francisco said about 53 aircraft were operating in the Eureka area, on evacuation missions and transporting personnel equipment, food, water and medical supplies.

Nineteen 'copters were from the carrier Bennington, which arrived off Eureka from Long Beach, Calif., before Christmas and steamed away today.

Rear Adm. R. A. McPherson of the Bennington turned over command of military support operations to Col. James Lee, 6th Army aviation officer.

Fourteen helicopters from Stead Air Force Base near Reno, Nev., reached Kingsley Air Force Base at Klamath Falls, Ore., Monday.

They will aid in the weather-frustrated rescue of the persons marooned in Northern California. Thirteen other helicopters heading for the same job were grounded by weather at Alturae in northeastern California.

A platoon of six to eight Caribou aircraft was ordered to the disaster area from the 11th Air Assault Division at Ft. Benning, Ga. A Caribou has a short take-off and landing capability and a capacity of 28 passengers or 2½ tons of cargo and crew of three.

Nineteen have died in the California floods so far, with some of the hardtst hit areas still unheard from and unable to be reached.

the party of the relative majority."

Saragat is an exponent of center-left government, both by commitment and as a member of the Moro Cabinet. Political experts speculated that some arrangement may emerge in which the Communists would play a strong role in a center-left regime.

President Johnson cabled congratulations to Saragat, but unofficial reaction at the State Department was tinged with reservations.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, commented that the election "showed that important decisions of a national significance in Italy are not possible without the Communists."

The Italian president is largely a figurehead, but in times of government crisis he names the new premier and he can dissolve Parliament. He also has considerable influence on political trends.

Saragat served three times as deputy premier — under Alcide de Gasperi in 1947, under Mario Scelba in 1954 and under Segni in 1955.

He broke with Socialist party leader Pietro Nenni in 1947, feeling that Nenni had become too communistic. Saragat formed the Democratic Socialist party, a pro-Western force that polled almost 1.9 million votes in the 1963 election.

from the sea. And if the Mediterranean is not big enough, we will give him the Red Sea to drink, too."

In Egyptian slang, to "drink from the sea" is the equivalent of to "go to hell."

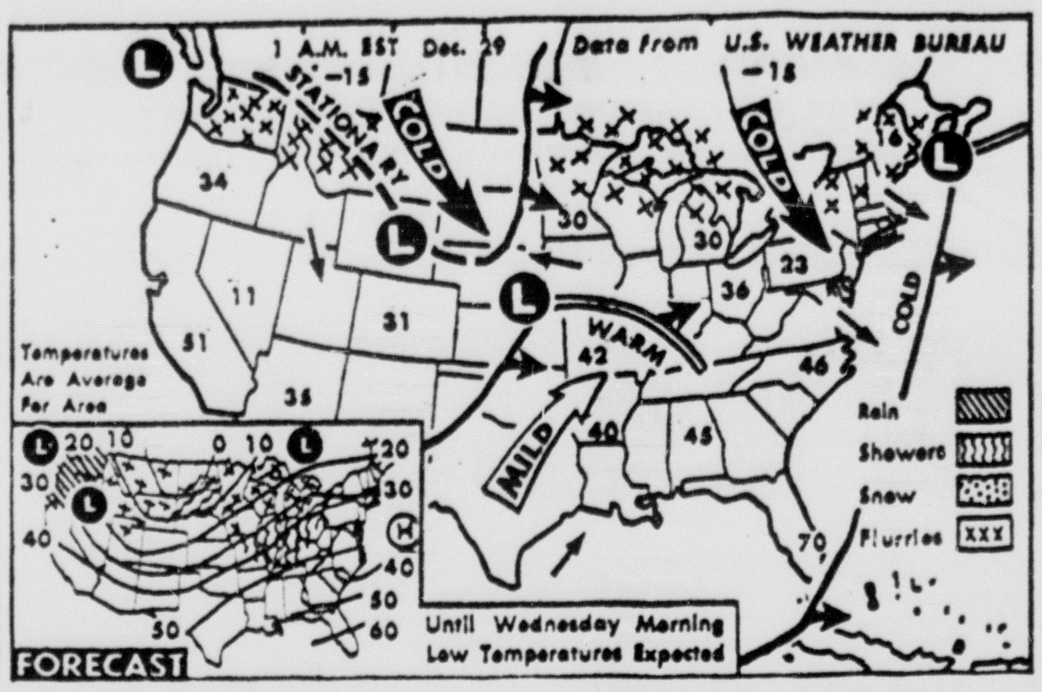
His outburst apparently was triggered by U.S. accusations that he is aiding Congolese rebels and intimations that future aid deals would be curtailed because of this.

Nasser said in his speech: "We have sent arms to the Congolese rebels, and we will continue to send arms because the rebels need them.

"We do not accept any words against us, and we will cut off the tongue of anyone who uses them. We do not need their money."

Washington has been supplying Nasser with about $140 million in food yearly under a three-year agreement that expires next June 30. The Nasser government has asked for $35 million worth for the coming year because of a serious shortage.

Some U.S. officials have indicated that the new $35-million request will be shelved.



WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Rain is likely tonight in Pacific northwest and showers in mid Mississippi valley and lower Lakes. Snow flurries are due in upper Mississippi valley, snow showers in parts of upper New England and snow in northern Plateau. # Malaysia Turns Down U.S. Loan At 5 Per Cent

"We thought our friends would look to us with sympathy in our time of difficulty."

U.S. officials said 5 per cent interest was normal for short-term credits for purchase of military equipment.

"Any aid to Malaysia must be given in the light of saving democracy and not on the basis of trade," said Sen. Athi Nahappan of the Malayan Indian Congress, a member of the government coalition.

Tan Chee Khoon, leader of the small opposition Socialist Front, called on the government to make a "complete reappraisal of its attempts to obtain aid from the West so that Malaysia will not become a pawn in the game of politics."

A spokesman for Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman's party, the United Malay National Organization, told the Malay Mail: "All along we were doubtful of U.S. aid. At least we know now just how sincere the Americans are toward Malaysia."

Razak told the House his government would accept an American offer to train military personnel. Originally the United States offered to train pilots to fly the jets it was going to sell Malaysia.

"Since we are defending not only ourselves but also democracy in this part of the world, our friends ought to look at us with more sympathy and give us more aid," Razak declared.

Britain has been shouldering the bulk of Malaysia's defense burden and is expected to continue doing so.

Indonesian President Sukarno has vowed to destroy Malaysia, a federation of former British territories in Southeast Asia. Indonesia sends raiders across the border into Malaysian Borneo, lands small groups of invaders on the Malaysian mainland, and harasses Malaysian fishing boats in the Strait of Malacca.

By Ele and Walt Dulaney

Jay Sebring is to male hair as Henry Ford was to cars: the pioneer, the innovator, the master. This compact, darkly handsome young executive has staged a quiet revolution in male grooming. His hair designs for Brando, Chakaris, Sinatra, etc. have sparked the general male populus to take a new critical look at their domes.

In time, we're certain his effect will be felt in all communities. But while Sebring style is limited to Hollywood and Palm Springs, you can still visit him in proxy with Walt.

Simple luxury is the keynote to the Sebring shop. You enter and clear your appointment with the attractive receptionist. Without a three or four week advance call, you can't hope to see this master male hair designer. Quite a few other faces are familiar to you in the waiting room. You've seen them in many TV shows or the theater screens.

It's your turn now. A shampoo girl takes you to the tilt-back chair and you recline with your head back in a basin as she shampoos your hair twice. She uses Jay's special non-stripping shampoo which removes the dirt and grime, but doesn't affect the hair's natural oils. The first shampoo is done with the aid of a plastic brush with round-tipped bristles. The second is done with fingertips gently massaging the scalp.

A towel is wrapped around your head, and you're led to another room. What luck! A chance to view the only woman whose hair Jay is willing to cut —the beauteous May Britt, once 20th Century Fox's "Blue Angel," and now Mrs. Sammy Davis, Jr. A few minutes, later, Jay has finished with May and it's your turn to meet him.

Pleasantries aside, Jay begins to work. You learn that hair is always shampooed before cutting because Jay wants to cut your hair as close as possible to the way it naturally grows — and freshly shampooed hair reflects the natural growth pattern.
hair forward in an overhang" effect; long, thin faces can look better with more hair to the side and less on top; in the case of square jaws, the hair should be worn full all over, including fuller sideburns.

In the Sebring chair, miracles occur. Walt, for instance, lost the double cowlick that had been plaguing him since childhood. No matter how he'd plaster it down, it would always pop up in a few minutes. Jay's trimming, following the line of natural growth, tamed it.

A visit to Jay's shop is quite an experience. At the end of your 90 minutes, you look into

You have to break a few of your sterotyped notions to adjust to Jay's thinking. First, Jay stresses "Wash your hair daily with a non-stripping shampoo." There is no truth whatsoever, he remarks, in the old wives tale about frequent hair washing causing drying.

White walls — the highwater, just-got-a-haircut mark — are pet Sebring hates. Hair is trimmed so it almost touches the ears. This style, of course, requires more frequent visits to maintain, but results in a more finished appearance.

Sideburns are in with Jay. They line up with the cheekbone and are slightly slanted a bit lower toward the front and higher at the ears, following the line of the cheekbones. According to Jay, fuller sideburns thin the face. So round-faced individuals are encouraged to wear their sideburns fuller than usual.

More Sebring tricks? Big ears can be minimized by leaving more hair on the sides of the head; a Durante Schnozolla can be lessened by combing the the mirror with new confidence. Why not? Your hair's been done by the master male hair designer. (A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

Police Recover Stolen Car Monday

A car valued at $500 was stolen Thursday, abandoned by the thieves and discovered by police Saturday, and the owners were located Monday, police reported.

Police said the car, a 1958 model, was found abandoned at the end of E. Pikes Peak Avenue with the rear wheels sunk into the ground and the rear bumper resting on the surface. The car had no keys in it, no license, and no special permit.

Officers found a license number on the car's inspection sticker and traced the car to Murphy Motors, 727 E. Pikes Peak Ave. Employes of the car lot told police that the owner had left them in charge on December 24 and that they had assumed the car had been sold.

Four Ft. Carson aviators left Monday to participate in rescue missions in the flooded Pacific Northwest.

They were requested by the 6th Army to fly the U-1 Otter (fixed-wing) aircraft.

They are: Maj. R. E. Lemon, Maj. J. C. Withers, Maj. L. W. Keister and Capt. R. W. Leistler, all of the 5th Infantry Division (Mech.).

Saddle and Blankets Stolen From Ranch

W. L. Shelton, 411 Kinnikinnik Dr., told the sheriff's department Monday that his $75 dark brown saddle and three $15 horse blankets had been stolen from the E. R. Pennington Ranch, southwest of Security.

The theft happened sometime between Nov. 15 and Sunday Deputy Sheriff W. J. Denboske said.

Gangsters Rob Church Rectory Of $223,000

Catholic church. The bandits made off with the truck containing $513,000 after binding four priests and guards who entered the rectory to pick up the money.

Here is the account of the holdup told by police and church officials:

The armored truck usually gets to the Divine Savior church on Monday's between 5:45 and 6:30 p.m. It arrived about 2 minutes after 6 p.m.

Guard Robert Johnsten, 38, of suburban Alsip entered the rectory and noticed Father Walter Morris, 58, pastor of the church, sitting tied in a chair. Johnsten was immediately hit from behind by one of the gunmen.

Father Richard Burke, 31, had walked into the room just before the Brinks guard arrived and after the three masked men had tied Father Morris to a chair with surgical tape and gagged him.

Father Burke was knocked to the floor by one gunman and bound with tape.

After the guard was hit, he was tied to Father Burke with tape.

The three masked men, one of them reported as very nervous, then went into action. One robber put on Johnsten's Brink's uniform and went outside. He gained admittance to the armored truck and slugged the driver, Bernard Gendek, 27.

The other two men, who had rifled the rectory safe of about $200, ran outside and drove in a car behind the truck to a cemetery near the church.

The men quickly loaded the money into their car, handcuffed Gendek to the cemetery fence and fled.

Heinz Beer, an ambulance driver for the Norridge fire department, had gone to the rectory to see Father Burke. He heard muffled sounds and found the two priests and the guard. Father Burke had managed to dial police after the three gunmen left.

Johnsten was hospitalized for lacerations to the head. He was reported to be in satisfactory condition.

Lt. Gruber said the robbery was well planned. He said the men apparently had broken open a seldom-used gate to the cemetery prior to the robbery.

Father Burke told of one masked man who was extremely nervous and apologetic.

"I'm sorry, I'm sorry, I'm sorry," he said as he trussed the priests.

Father Burke said the men referred to the priests as "father" and made no threats, except when Father Burke was squirming on the floor trying to loose his bonds.

"If you don't behave," one gunman said, "you know what you're going to get."

more than 20 years in the penitentiary.

On a previous occasion, Dec. 1, just before the state was prepared to go to trial, the case was postponed again as Maestas appeared in court under the influence of a narcotic drug and was unable to co-operate with counsel. The defendant is a self-confessed drug addict.

He has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and authough an examination by Dr. E. James Brady has found him to be legally sane, he is still maintaining both pleas.

He is alleged to have robbed the Self Service Drug Store, 506 W. Colorado Ave., March 17 when a quantity of narcotics was stolen and conspired with Martinez and Henry Filimone Vigil, 22, formerly of 609 S. Sierra Madre St. Vigil has not yet come to trial.

Maestas's case was continued until Jan. 11 for trial setting.

DROPOUTS' JOBS SCARCE

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)— In an economy where technological changes and automation are altering the manpower needs of industry, difficulties besetting school dropouts are increasing.

So says a special report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics based on a survey of the American labor force made last year, which points out the occupational advantages that occure to persons with more education.

The findings show that dropouts tend to work in industries with low-paying, unskilled jobs; dropouts tend to have higher unemployment rates than graduates, generally do not upgraduates, generaly do not upgrade their job skills signifitcantly after leaving school.

Russians Reported Ready To Aid Rebels in Congo

TERROR TACTICS

Throughout Gromyko's discussions of the Congo, he made it clear the Kremlin is determined to eliminate Tshombe.

It was intimated the Reds are willing to include him in a coalition government for a short while — probably because of fear that if excluded, Tshombe would set up an independent regime in Kantanga province, where he has great popular strength.

But the Communists are bent on getting rid of him, and a so-called coalition government, in which Reds would hold key places, is obviously their stratagem for accomplishing that.

High-placed State Department officials are credited as favoring a coalition regime. Among them are Rusk and Undersecretary Averell Harriman.

President Johnson will have to come to a decision on this fateful issue before his inaugural January 20. With Soviet combat planes and "volunteer" pilots and maintenance personnel steadily building up at the Juba airfield, time is running out.

At present, Johnson's only directive has been to try to get Russia's cooperation to prevent the Congo from becoming another South Viet Nam.

Revealingly indicative of Rusk's attitude are comments he made in the course of a speech before the American Negro Leadership Conference on Africa, in Washington on September 25, as follows:

"We are pleased to see the Organization of African Unity participating in efforts to help end the Congo's troubles. We wish nothing more than to see an effective African solution, and wish to cooperate with the Organization of African Unity and the government of the Congo toward this end.

"Most of Africa's other unsolved problems lie in the southern end of the continent, where government by consent of the governed has not yet been achieved. This area includes the Republic of South Africa, South West Africa, Southern Rhodesia and the Portuguese territories of Angola and Mozambique.

"The U.S. strongly supports African unity and the efforts of Africans to settle African problems."

Intelligence has reported that Alexander Shelepin, head of the Soviet secret police and newly-named member of the powerful Presidium, secretly flew to Cairo early this month expressly to formulate plans for intensifying the offensive in Africa, particularly the Congo.

During Shelepin's meetings with Egyptian dictator Gamal Nasser, details were agreed on for supplying the Communist-controlled rebels with arms and combat planes.

Shelepin also indicated the Kremlin's choice as Tshombe's successor is Thomas Kanza, self-styled "foreign minister" of the rebels and long a bitter Tshombe foe.

The Congo government's small airforce consists of T-28 jet trainers and B-25 and B-26 World War II bombers. The pilots are anti- Castro Cubans, white Africans and Europeans—recruited chiefly by the Central Intelligence Agtncy. Most of the technicians also are from these sources.

FOREIGN FLASHES

While Nasser is actively supporting the Congo rebels, he is sounding out the U.S. on getting more surplus farm products. Nasser has indicated he would like to "buy" between $35 and $50 million of grain, beef, poultry and cattle feed. As in the past, he proposes to pay for these commodities with his own currency which would remain in Egypt. The U.S. already has more than $234 million in such counterpart funds accumulated there. In effect, such "sales" are give-aways, as the money will never reach the U.S. Treasury. . .Close friends of Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, are again hinting he is slated to succeed Secretary Rusk as head of the State Department. These reports crop up every now and then; whether there is any substance to the latest flurry remains to be seen. When President Johnson was in the Senate, he and Fulbright were very close.

Medal of Honor Winner Is Welcomed Home

By JOHN MULLIGAN

SAUGERTIES, N.Y. (AP) — About half of the 4,000 residents of this Hudson Valley village turned out in 24-degree weather on the flag-lined, snowy streets to welcome home Capt. Roger H. C. Donlon, first winner of the Medal of Honor in South Viet Nam's war against Communist guerrillas.

Stores closed, the auditorium of the municipal building was renamed for Donlon, fellow townsmen gave him a dinner at the largest restaurant in town — although only 250 could fit in — and they filled the biggest school auditorium in Ulster County to its capacity of 1,000.

The gifts the 30-year-old captain received were humble, but eloquent.

The Father Harty Drum Corps that he once led as a teenage drum major gave him his old baton, engraved. The volunteer fire department made him a life member, the first in its 100 years. Plaques came from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Dads of Foreign Service Veterans and the South Side Men's Club.

The Knights of Columbus gave him a rosary, a desk set came from the Chamber of Commerce, and a desk set-radio combination came from his class of 1952 at Saugerties High School. Service clubs gave him a $200 U.S. savings bond, and the women's societies of St. Mary's Church made 2,000 cookies for a reception at the end of an hour program.

Peter M. Williams, chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, suggested the best gift Donlon had received was "to have come back to us alive and well."

The captain was wounded four times in leading a successful defense of Camp Nam Dong last July 6 against a five-hour night attack by heavy Viet Cong forces. He received the nation's highest military decoration from President Johnson in the White House last Dec. 5.

As Donlon listened to the singing of the national anthem that opened the program, he said he remembered that while convalescing he became aware that "you don't see Old Glory much in Viet Nam. We're guests in that country. We don't fly Old Glory there, except on the embassy in Saigon."

The tall blond officer who wears the green beret of the Special Forces, told reporters he had received many letters, especially from children. He added, "I've got an important appointment Tuesday night. I've got to talk to the Boy Scouts down in Ruby."

Coming Year May Not Be As Good as Past One

By JOHN PIERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —"A good year, but not so good as 1964."

That in a nutshell is how President Johnson's top advisers see the economy in 1965.

This kind of an outlook, they hasten to add, makes it doubtful that unemployment rolls will be reduced much during the coming year.

Their assessment is popular among government analysts outside the White House too, although some do not rule out the possibility of either a boom or a recession.

Overall, there is less certainty about the business picture than there was a year ago when the chief question was how far and how fast the economy would advance after the tax cut.

Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers is making its plans on the assumption that U.S. production will grow about 4 per cent in 1965 compared to about 5 per cent in 1964.

Chairman Gardner Ackley described this rate of expansion as "excellent . . . but not one that has us jumping for joy." He said a 4 per cent growth is not enough to reduce unemployment, eat into unused plant capacity or expand business profits.

Why the expected slowdown in 1965?

"We've just about had it (the lift) from the tax cut," was how one highly-placed analyst put it. Although the tax cut's final installment goes into effect in 1965, the withholding rate on wage earners fell the full distance last spring.

Thus the feeling in the council is that little more in the way of a boost to consumer spending can be expected from that source. Excise tax reduction, promised by President Johnson for 1965, is counted on to do little more than offset a possible letdown after consumers have made up the auto purchases they missed during the fall strike.

Western State Asks $1.5 Million Budget

DENVER (AP) — Western State College at Gunnison asked the legislature's Joint Budget Committee today for a $1.5 million appropriation for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

This is 23.7 per cent more than its current appropriation. Dr. Harlan Bryant, Western State president, said enrollment was expected to increase almost 9 per cent over the current 1,930 students.

The college also has asked for $495,700 for land purchases, improvement of utilities and planning for an arts building.

Dr. Bryant said enrollment may rise to 3,000 by 1969.

U.S., Canadian Indians Seek Cooperation

DENVER (AP) —Greater cooperation between United States and Canadian Indians is a chief objective of the National Indian Youth Council, holding executive meetings here today and Tuesday.

Council President Melvin Thom, a Paiute from Schurz, Nev., said Indians are especially concerned about their relationship with the governments of both this country and Canada.

They feel their rights as members of a "Sovereign Nation"—rights guaranteed by old treaty —often are ignored by government officials, Thom said in an interview.

The council in a statement praised the Canadian Indian Youth Council for "working for the aspirations and best interests of the tribes of their homeland."

"We find that there is no discrepancy in the purpose and cause of our two organizations" the statement said. "Our people share common concerns and common objectives."

The statement said "above all, we are totally committed toward the protection of the Indian land base and the Indian economic base."

A Canadian delegation to the meetings is headed by Allen Jacob, a Chipewyan from Edmonton, Alta.

Herb Blatchford, a Navajo from Gallup, N.M., who is executive director of the NIYC, said Indians' rights are now being threatened in the state of Washington. Ancient fishing grounds may have to be abandoned, he said, when proposed powerdams are built.

GETS PROMOTION

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) —President Johnson announced Monday the promotion of Maj. Gen. Henry W. Buse Jr. of the United States Marine Corps to the rank of lieutenant general.

The appointment is in effect while Buse serves as deputy chief of staff of plans and programs in the corps. He has been in the job since June, 1963.

Mediators Kept Hopping By U. S. Labor Troubles

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major labor troubles in 1964 kept federal mediators — including President Johnson — hopping to quell the more serious disputes.

The underlying factors indicated that 1965 will also see its share of flare-ups over wages, job security, automation and working conditions.

Key steel industry contracts covering some 350,000 workers are first among the approximately one-third of all labor agreements up for negotiation in the coming year. About five million workers are involved, all told. Others include aerospace, rubber, textile, glass container and rubber industries.

Although nationwide strike activity in 1964 was only half the average of the previous 14 years, the disputes that did occur were big ones.

Virtually the entire railroad industry came to the brink of a nationwide strike half a dozen times and major walkouts plagued the auto and shipping industries. Near-strikes also troubled General Electric, Western Union, Chicago meatpackers, the television industry and major oil companies.

The White House became a frequent stopping place for labor negotiators. They holed up there for two straight weeks in April to settle the worst of the rail strike threats.

The President also intervened to end a longshoremen's boycott of wheat shipments to the Soviet Union in a dispute that had heavy foreign policy overtones. Later, Johnson invoked the Taft-Hartley Act when 60,000 longshoremen walked out in Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports from Maine to Texas in a dispute over job cuts.

The Ford and General Motors auto strikes involving several hundred thousand workers were settled late in the year.

Railroad and longshore disputes still simmered at year-end and could break out again early in the new year.

Johnson saw his wage-price guidelines challenged by union leaders and ignored in many contract settlements. The upcoming steel talks will provide another severe test.

Johnson's economic advisors said wage demands should be held within the average 3.2 per cent annual productivity increase for industry as a whole. Wage increases alone averaged 3.1 per cent in the first nine months of 1964, the Labor Department said, but this didn't include fringe benefits which in some cases "substantially exceeded the increase in wage rates." The department said it couldn't estimate the total impact of fringe increases.

Although he had his troubles with unions, Johnson ended the year heavily on the plus side, with virtually all of organized labor in his camp in his November election victory over Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The year was a rugged one for a number of prominent union leaders.

Hardest hit was Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa, sentenced to a total of 13 years on two federal convictions of jury tampering and defrauding his own union.

But despite his legal troubles and some internal rumblings of potential revolt, Hoffa stayed out of jail on appeal and maintained an uneasy grip on his giant union.

NEW 'INSTANT'

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) —An "instant" hot spring has been developed here by Francis Reinecke, a herbalist who claims to be the first man in the world to have perfected the process.

The herbalist claims his preparation, a granulated mixture of sodium salicytate, potassium bicarbonate and seven other minerlas, reporduces the medical effects of a hot spring in the bathtub.

The recipe, according to Reinecke, is: drop three tablespoons full into a bath of hot water, soak for 15 minutes, and aches and pains are eased.

U.S. Aid to Viet Nam Marking Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials conceded today that a program of new U.S. assistance to South Viet Nam is marking time as a result of political confusion in Saigon.

However, authoritative sources said the U.S. offer still stands to assist South Viet Nam's Premier Tran Van Huong's civilian government to make a more efficient total effort when it is able to do so.

Obviously, the Huong government is not in a position now to make such an effort, officials said.

Authorities denied any implication that expanded assistance, estimated at about $60 million, has been canceled as a means of punishing South Viet Nam's military leaders for purging the High National Council and reasserting military domination over civilian rule.

President Will Review Policies In World Crisis

By KARL R. BAUMAN

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson meets today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Presidential Assistant McGeorge Bundy to review world developments.

The three also were to discuss the State Department's budget for the next fiscal year and go over personnel matters.

Rusk and Bundy, presidential assistant for national security affairs, were to fly to the President's ranch from Washington during the morning.

George McGhee, U.S. ambassador to Bonn, who is home for consultation, will fly to the ranch Wednesday to review developments in West Germany.

Johnson's statement that he would review with Rusk and Bundy "ambassadors throughout the world" appeared to be in line with reports he plans shifts in 15 to 20 ambassadorships.

Official sources in Washington denied that McGhee or David K. E. Bruce, ambassador to London, would be involved in the shifts.

The shifting is expected to start in January with the naming of seven ambassadors and a minister to vacant posts.

Johnson is still working on his State of the Union message. He discussed it by phone Monday with Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and others.

Johnson told newsmen at an informal session on the front lawn of the LBJ Ranch Monday that next Monday's State of the Union message will be brief and will emphasize recommendations he would like to see considered promptly.

He displayed three thick loose-leaf notebooks which he said contained suggestions some 50 agencies would like him to consider before writing his message.

Johnson said parts of the administration's program not outlined in the message "will be dealt with during the next four years in a series of messages from time to time, and they will be timed, based upon when Congress is ready to receive them and when the committees can act upon them and when the administration has completed its studies in the respective fields."

He said he didn't want to leave the impression "that we expect to build a Great Society and develop it overnight, or in one day or in any one week or in any one month or in any one session. There will be, as I want to emphasize, a series of legislative proposals, and these will be brief and considered very carefully."

The State of the Union message will be delivered to a joint session of Congress and the American public at 9 p.m. on the opening day of the new Congress.

Johnson told newsmen he had picked a new commissioner of Internal Revenue and filled two other major posts.

Sheldon B. Cohen, 37, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Service, will become commissioner.

Dr. Frederick Lewis Deming, 52, president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis, will become undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs.

Mitchell Rogovin, 34, assistant to the commissioner of internal revenue, will succeed Cohen as chief counsel.

Cohen will succeed Bertrand Harding as head of the IRS. Harding was named acting commissioner last July 10 to succeed Mortimer Caplin, who resigned to resume law practice.

Deming, a native of Des Moines, holds a Ph.D. in economics from Washington University in St. Louis. He went to work for the Federal Reserve Bank in St. Louis in 1941, rising to first vice president before becoming president of the Minneapolis bank in 1957.

In the Treasury post he will succeed Robert V. Roosa, who has resigned effective Jan. 1.

The undersecretary for monetary affairs not only directs Treasury financing operations but also is the key man in international financial matters.

Cohen, the new chief tax collector, is a native of Washington, D.C. He became chief counsel of IRS last Jan. 6.

Rogovin has been with the IRS since 1954 and assistant to the commissioner since 1961. He is a native of New York.

Maid of Cotton Beauty Contest Is Said Sedate

By DON MCLEOD

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — It's the nation's most sedate beauty contest, the annual glitter that is the Maid of Cotton Pageant, where poise and pedigree are as important to a girl as face and figure.

In a gala contest finale at City Auditorium tonight the 1965 Maid of Cotton will be named to an invitation-only audience which will include the social register of the cotton industry.

The score of cotton cuties, representing a dozen cotton-producing states from Florida to California, all know their way around the social set.

The official contest specifications insist the maid "come from a home such that other members of her family can join her on any occasion without embarrassment or apology."

The National Cotton Council, which sponsors the contest, is looking for a girl to tour the world as the industry's good-will ambassador to the public, and the winner is picked with this in mind.

Beauty is important, but other things count more.

The girls are put through two days of demanding activity, and the judges watch closely through it all for that social blunder or slip of etiquette which might disqualify an aspirant.

The judging starts when the contestants meet the press for photos and interviews. They also are interviewed before live television cameras to see how they react.

There are two luncheons and a dinner-dance where the sharp-eyed judges watch to see if the girls can use the right fork and keep up a delightful banter without ceasing to smile prettily.

Modeling ability is a prime consideration and short girls seldom win. A pretty girl who photographs poorly is out. A pleasing radio voice is necessary.

Despite emphasis on other things, the maid must have a good figure.

"We are not necessarily looking for Venus," the council states, "and the Maid will not be photographed in bathing suits — but she will be photographed in play suits and sports clothes, and she needs a figure that will make such garments show off to best advantage."

"The Maid must exemplify the young American woman at her best," the rules say, "culture and refinement that will earn respect in any company."

National Guard Is Integrated, General Says

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of the National Guard said today all 50 states — with Alabama and Mississippi falling into line last — have dropped bars against mixing Negroes and whites in their Guard units.

"The National Guard of all states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico is now integrated," Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson told The Associated Press.

"All restrictions, whether by law or administrative regulation, barring membership for race, religion or national origin have been eliminated in the National Guard," he added.

Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, acknowledged that there had been "only token integration in some areas so far." But Wilson, an Air Guard general from Arkansas, contended that even token integration "represents a milestone in the history of the 'National Guard."

President Johnson and his Committee on Equal Opportunity in the Armed Forces said last Sunday they were encouraged at "definite and clear signs of progress" in desegregating the Guard.

They strongly indicated they were not satisfied with token integration in some states.

Brig. Gen. Francis S. Greenlief, deuty chief of the bureau, said, "We expect progress to continue."

"I don't expect to see any tremendous surge in Negro membership in hitherto all-white outfits in the South," Greenlief said. "It is a matter of steady growth."

Eighteen months ago there were 10 states that had not integrated their Guard organizations. They were Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

The drive to persuade these states to integrate began in earnest when Wilson became Guard Bureau chief in the summer of 1963.

As Greenlief noted, "We had no command authority. We tried to lead."

The governors —the key officials in peacetime in their state guard organizations —had to be won over.

Wilson — with his slow grin and soft Arkansas drawl — set out to bring the Southern state chiefs around to his way of thinking.

It was a slow job of missionary work, done through personal contact and conversation wherever possible. Wilson was something less than welcome in some of the governors' offices at first.

The last two states to fall in line were Alabama and Mississippi. Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama consented during the autumn and Gov. Paul Johnson of Mississippi made it unanimous Dec. 1.

Probe Is Continuing Of Fighter Export

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says investigation is continuing into the reported illegal export of two American fighter planes to Haiti last September.

A department spokesman denied Monday published reports that it had persuaded authorities to drop the inquiry in order to avoid unveiling techniques of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The New York Times and New York Herald Tribune accounts also said prosecution of a Haitian consular official had been dropped to avoid reprisals against U.S. Embassy representatives in Haiti.

"We have not been asked by CIA to ask dropping of prosecution," a State Department spokesman said. If events should warrant prosecution, he added, "there would be no objection on our part to normal judicial procedure being followed."

Ocean Floor Raised By Alaska Quake

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A geophysicist who spent six weeks in the Alaska area studying effects of the March 27 earthquake said Monday that in many places off the coast the ocean floor raised as much as 50 feet.

Richard J. Malloy said his findings were based on soundings made in 1927 and just after the quake.

Malloy was here to take part in a symposium on the Alaska temblor at the American Geophysical Union's three-day western meeting.

Mariner Continues Trip Through Space

The space agency said Sunday Mariner 4, launched Nov. 28, was operating normally and sending back a steady stream of information. It is expected to pass within a few thousand miles of Mars next July on a photographing mission.

English Prince Emcees at Beat Ball

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Like it was a rave, man. And absolutely dishy, simply soopah for the gels.

With records by the Beatles, the Animals, the Stones, and this swinging new disc jockey, bluest blooded in the business.

It was the first beat ball in the history of British royalty, given at Windsor Castle Monday night by Prince Charles, 16, and his sister, Princess Anne, 14.

The castle's crimson drawing room was turned into a discotheque. That's a night club which provides only recorded music for dancing.

Charles had taped the numbers played for his record collection, and cut himself in as master of ceremonies.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip looked on with Princess Margaret for a while and danced a fairly lively measure while the youngsters twisted. The older folk stayed only briefly.

Most of the 120 guests were schoolmates of the host and hostess — Anne's from Benenden School in Kent and Charles's from Gordonstoun in Scotland.

The belle of the beat ball, by all accounts, was the queen's godchild. Rosemary Elphinstone, who is 17.

With the castle's 20-foot walls still vibrating from the big beat, the youngsters demolished a buffet of hors d'oeuvres, salmon and turkey washed down with champagne and soft drinks.

House Swept Away by Flood Was Not Insured

By CONRAD PRANGE

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Norton Wood poked around the wreckage of his once-comfortable home in the Keizer area, a North Salem suburb.

"How do you start all over?" he asked.

Wood's house was one of the hardest hit among hundreds devastated Christmas week when the Willamette River flooded into the lowland area.

As water receded Monday, residents returned to their water-logged homes and began picking up the pieces, shoveling muck out, and surveying the remains.

Norton Wood's house was swept off its foundation. It can not be salvaged. It was not insured.

"I don't know what I'm going to do now," Wood said. The soft-spoken father of three, a foreman at a seed warehouse, didn't complain.

Mrs. Wood, an attractive brunette, says, 'It could have been worse. We have our health and our friends. We lost just about everything else."

Their three-bedroom, two-bath home cost the Woods $13,600 five years ago, and was two-thirds paid for.

The house was decorated outside with Christmas lights last week, and inside the Woods had put finishing touches on a Christmas tree. Then disaster struck.

Heavy rain and rapidly melting snow in the Cascade Mountains brought the Willamette to one of its highest stages in history.

Wood, 42, and his family evacuated the home last Tuesday night. They spent the night with neighbors who lived on higher ground.

"Early next morning," says Steve Wood, 16, "I went back to our street. I could hear the water rushing through a low area near our house. It came up fast."

The Woods quickly moved out appliances and some Christmas gifts, then abandoned their home to the rising, muddy water.

When they saw it again on Christmas Day it had been washed off its foundations, swept along for a block, and hurled against another house. It was ripped open and gutted by the river.

Elaine Wood, 7, was almost speechless Monday as she looked over the wreckage of her home.

"Even my swing set is gone," she said.

"Elaine received a doll buggy for Christmas. But her dolls are gone. We gave her some phonograph records," Mrs. Wood said. "But her record player is lost."

The family is living with the oldest son, James, 19, in his Salem apartment. Mrs. Wood is looking for a house to rent.

Norton Wood is wearing a borrowed jacket. He is keeping busy.

"I've got to go help my neighbor, Roy McElroy, clean up his house so he can move back into it," Wood said. "He's got troubles."

Monroney Says He Will Be Elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma believes the race for the assistant Senate Democratic leadership will end with his own selection as a compromise.

Monroney said in an interview Monday the contest is a close one among three senators — John O. Pastore of Rhode Island, Russell B. Long, of Louisiana, and Monroney.

The second spot is being vacated by Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota. A Democratic caucus — voting by secret ballot, according to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana — will choose Humphrey's successor Jan. 4.

Long has claimed at least 30 votes. Monroney believes Long will fall significantly short of that total. He is offering himself as a compromise choice between the Southern conservative bloc, from which Long draws the bulk of his support, and the eastern liberal senators backing Pastore.

Peace Corps People Arrive in Malawi

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — One hundred and four U.S. Peace Corps volunteers arrived today, increasing the Peace Corps in Malawi to more than 250 teachers, health experts and instructors.

Malawi, the former British colony of Nyasaland, now has the fifth largest Peace Corps establishment in Africa, according to Director Dr. Jim Blackwell of San Jose, Calif.

Episcopalian Is Ordained In His Jail

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. John McDowell corn wanted his congregation to witness his ordination as an Episcopal priest. So he was ordained Monday in the Cook County jail.

About 70 prisoners — including three awaiting execution — knelt in the Chapel of St. Dismas as Father Corn, 34, entered the priesthood. He has been Episcopal chaplain at the jail since July, a month after he was ordained a deacon.

"The parishioners normally would attend the ordination of their priest and these prisoners are my parishioners," he explained.

It was the first time in the memory of Warden Jack Johnson that ordination ceremonies were conducted in the chapel.

The Rt. Rev. Gerald Francis Burrill, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, and the Rt. Rev. James Montgomery, suffragan bishop of the diocese officiated at the ordination.

Among those attending were Father Corn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Corn. The Elder Corn formerly was editor of the Washington Star.

Father Corn served three years in the Marines and practiced law for two years in Washington, D.C., after graduating from Georgetown University Law School in 1955. He graduated from the General Theological Seminary in New York City last June.

Red China Claims Indian Infringement

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China protested to India today against what it called recent intrusions by Indian aircraft into China's airspace inside Tibet, Sinkiang and Sechwan provinces.

The New China News Agency said three Indian planes flew for about three hours and were about 220 miles from the "line of actual control on the Sino-Indian border."

Reds May Find Congo Equally Maddening

By SAUL PETT

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Ironically, one hope of reaching some stability in the Congo and averting another Viet Nam is that the Communists may find it even more frustrating and maddening than the West has.

Thus far, although the mimeograph machines have been busy on both sides, neither East nor West appears heavily committed in this country, which to the visitor, seems to have a natural instinct for anarchy, contradiction and chaos.

The Russians have talked loudly about aiding the Congolese rebels but to date there is little sign they have. African countries such as Algeria, Ghana and the United Arab Republic apparently have sent some material aid but, because of their own economic difficulties, Western sources doubt that they can send much.

The Red Chinese have won considerable mileage on what appears to be little effort — some weapons, money and propaganda. The United States, which supported the central government with a fingers-crossed attitude, now supplies the Congo about $50 million a year in aid, most of it in agricultural surplus. As the cold war goes, this is small.

If the Chinese increase their involvement in the mineral-rich, strategically placed Congo, the United States may be forced to increase its commitment — all of which could quickly escalate into another Viet Nam. The big question, then, is how interested are the Chinese?

"Logistically, another Viet Nam here would be difficult for the Chinese since they would be a long way from home," said one Western diplomat. "Obviously, they don't mind perpetuating turmoil in the Congo but I can't believe that they or any other Communists seriously regard this as their kind of revolution. Communists require a people capable of more political discipline and inflexibility."

Nothing is so rare as political discipline in the Congo or a politician who is not flexible. Ideology counts for nothing. Civil wars start simply because one group of politicians wants to replace another at the public treasury. Today's irrevocable feud may be tomorrow's irrevocable alliance.

For two years of blood warfare, Moise Tshombe fought the central government with his secessionist movement in Katanga. Now, at its invitation, he heads the central government as its prime minister.

Christopher Gbenya now leads the revolution, apparently from exile. But it was Gbenya who once offered the top spot in the rebellion to Tshombe in exchange for financial support. Tshombe turned him down.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Dr. Kime is an excellent example of the proper type of professor. For he combines much clinical experience with his ability to lecture in the classroom. Alas, colleges seldom require any practical experience from their faculty though grammar and high school teachers must be well grounded in educational methods and even practice teaching!

CASE U-469: Dr. Edwin Kime is the noted anatomy professor of Indiana University Medical School.

He served for many years as a successful physician and surgeon in private practice.

And pioneered intravenous anesthesia, too!

So when he returned to the Medical School to teach anatomy, the students were doubly appreciative.

For he would stress the practical aspects of human anatomy and offer them many bits of clinical advice which are omitted by the braintruster professor who has his Ph. D but no clinical experience.

For example, when I took anatomy at Northwestern University Medical School, we had a famous professor at the head of the department.

But he was not a physician or surgeon!

So he never stressed the clinical aspects of anatomy.

For example, he would put as much emphasis on the fingernail as upon the gall bladder or appendix!

Yet even you laymen realize that fingernails involve far less surgical attention than the gall bladder.

Actually, our class would have benefited far more from our year's dissection and study of human anatomy, if we had been taught anatomy around the various surgical incisions as focal points.

For example, before we even touched the cadavers, the professor should have used a marking pencil and indicated the standard incisions all over the body for the usual types of surgical operations.

Thus, he should have marked the spots for an appendectomy, a Caesarian section, thyroidectomy, etc.

Then the medical students could have learned their anatomy with reference to its practical uses.

Instead, they had to dig out their old anatomy books all over again when they graduated and started hospital internships, just to learn their anatomy the way it SHOULD have been taught originally, namely around its surgical uses.

What you laymen seldom realize is the startling fact that teachers in colleges and professional school actually are not required to have specific training in TEACHING!

But all high school and grammar school professors must take many courses in the department of education to learn how to teach.

In college (including medical, dental, law, etc.) all the professors need is a doctor's degree.

They aren't required to have had even a single course in public speaking!

They don't need to have taken a single class in educational or adolescent psychology!

They usually aren't required to have any practical or clinical experience in their profession.

And no sales training at all in catching attention or cleverly "packaging" ideas and mixing relevant humor with their dry lectures.

In high school, they must have had "practice teaching" but that is not true in colleges!

A physician must have served an internship to start private practice, but a medical professor can often teach in medical school without ANY medical experience.

So we need some urgent efficiency engineering applied to college teaching.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Crowd Psychology In Government

Occasionally someone rebukes us for the stand we take in favor of individualism. We are told by these critics that our approach is unreasonable and impractical. The fact is, we are reminded, that man is really a social creature. No man is sufficient unto himself. He comes into the world and would not survive at all, save for the constant service of his parents.

As he grows and matures, he comes into contact with a world containing many people and many things. One of the first requirements which he must make is to adjust to these groups. He cannot simply have his own way. He must conform and fit in and do what others do.

Finally, we are told, he will find his niche. He will fit in somewhere and live his life as a constructive citizen on the basis of his service to others.

It is the group that matters. It is the social adjustment that is primary. Group values, group norms, group responsibility, group decisions — these are the items that are of primary concern and value, as our critics see the world.

This simplistic view of the world, as one inhabited by groups of persons, incorrectly assumes that individualism is of necessity hostile to cooperative effort. The reverse is true. Cooperation is only possible between individuals, each of whom makes his own decisions and establishes his own values. When persons are compelled, through conditioning or brute force, to accept group judgments and group responsibility, the dignity of man and the cooperative effort of human beings are injured.

Observe the action of crowds. The evidence is conclusive that crowd morality invariably operates on a descending scale. Crowds behave in cruel and heartless ways which are foreign to the behavior of individuals.

Individual men will forgive; a crowd of men will take vengeance. An individual will show compassion; a crowd will lust after violence and death.

All governmental action is calculated to violate the rights of individuals in seeking some kind of group standard or group behavioral pattern. This is the reason men turn to governments. Government is the permanent organization of the mob.

In this respect man is a paradox. When he is by himself (we do not mean isolation, we intend intellectual integrity) he is prone to reason and to behave within a rational framework of action. But the same man, under the influence of popular pressures, is prone to succumb to bestiality.

In Albany, New York, last summer, a large crowd gathered to watch a 19-year-old youth teeter on the ledge of a hotel roof eleven stories above ground. The crowd took up the chant: "Jump, jump, jump." And when the lad was finally helped to safety, the crowd booed him.

The individuals in that crowd, if asked independently if they wanted the lad to die, would certainly have denied such a desire. But the emotional fever of hate and excitement was generated in the group pattern. Many similar instances have been reported from the days of Rome and the behavior of the mob at a gladiatorial contest.

Those who observe the operation of the stock market have commented many times upon the kind of mob psychology or mob contagion that seems to grip investors when some rumor, good or bad, is bruited about. Men begin acting without recourse to their individual reason and instead follow the herd.

It is this tendency that governments encourage and, indeed, perpetuate. No one can deny that from an economic point of view, man's survival and his ability to make progress relate in fine to his willingness and ability to work with others. But cooperative effort should not be and must not become a matter of group rationalization. Deplorable results are obtained when it is.

As a matter of fact, viewed in this light, almost all government incursions for purposes of taxation,, take on a bit of mob psychology. Those who clamor for more government participation well know, if they stop to reason, that government can do nothing of merit without first inflicting its will upon the helpless and the ignorant. Government can give no one anything that it does not first take away from another.

But appeals to a popular plebiscite to determine policy almost invariably end with cruelty against some enthroned as a veritable way of life. By using government, an instrument of universal predation is encouraged to invoke mob action in an effort to satisfy the lowest cravings of the masses.

Individual responsibility and individual self-control leads to economic well-being and progress. Reliance upon group morality and group responsibility has the opposite effect and leads, by precise steps, to dissolution of character and the destruction of cultures.

Selectivity

Some cling to the past and resist all changes, assuming that the past was always good. Some cling to the future, and reject the past, assuming that all change is for the better. But a few evaluate reality, retaining the good from the past and seeking the good in the future.

Growth of Private Schools

Growth of non-tax-supported schools throughout the nation is demonstrated in a study of classroom teachers by the U.S. Office of Education.

The study was of the total number of teachers and is designed to project the future demand for teachers in the tax-supported as well as private schools.

According to the study in School Life, the official journal of the Office of Education, the number of teachers in government schools in 12 years (1953-64) has increased from 1,037,000 to 1,625,000 or 56.8 per cent. During the same time teachers in private schools went up from 136,000 to 223,000, an increase of 64 per cent.

Incidentally, it is noted that the federal bureau apparently does not expect the non-tax schools to continue their faster rate of growth. The federal agency projects that for 1973, the government schools will require an additional 291,000 teachers, an increase of 18 per cent, but that the non-tax supported schools will require only 28,000 more teachers, an increase of only 12.6 per cent.

It would appear that the bureaucrats can be trusted to report statistics, but there is cause to suspect bias is showing in the projections of future requirements. That is,' unless the government school people believe they are going to reverse the recent trends.

In spite of the ever heavier tax load a growing number of persons have been expressing dissatisfaction with the compulsory tax-supported government schools. They have been starting schools which offer the subject matter they want, and have been bearing the cost of training their young as well as paying taxes for the schools they do not want or need.

Unless the bureaucrats make establishment of private and parochial schools more difficult, there seems little likelihood that the rapid expansion of these free market schools will decrease. It is more likely to pick up speed. Or, perhaps, the bureaucrats may be considering making it illegal to compete with government schools as they did with those competing with the government mail system.

Farm Bureau to Buy A & P?

By OSCAR COOLEY
Associate Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

The nation's largest farm organization is thinking of entering the supermarket business. At the suggestion of its Ohio affiliate, the American Farm Bureau Federation at its annual convention voted to investigate the feasibility of buying a food chain, such as the century - old Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company. This could require an investment of some $400,000,000, it is said.

Just how a farm organization of even 1,600,000 members could raise this huge sum has not been explained, but D. R. Stanfield of the Ohio Bureau is quoted as suggesting that 500,000 farmers invest $100 a year each for four years. This would raise half the sum required; the other half he felt could be raised by selling 20-year debentures, presumably to the general public.

If farmers can produce this kind of money for investing in a speculative business, why all the talk about rural poverty and the great American "farm problem?"

The image of the "poor" American farmer is better preserved by the National Farmers Union, which wants a giant firm not only for retailing but processing food but wants it financed by — guess who — the federal government.

There is nothing wrong in principle with the Farm Bureau buying a supermarket chain. If organized farmers want to enter the food retailing business, they have a perfect right to, as has any investor. But what of the economics of such a move? Does the investment promise as good a return on the capital as any other that the farmers could make?

Food retailing does not yield as high a return per dollar invested as several other industries that could be named; automobile manufacture, for example. Yet food retailing is more stable than some; people go right on eating, in good times and bad. However, the Farm Bureau leaders are not thinking of cash dividends alone. They have in mind long-range benefits to the farmer as a producer and marketer.

They apparently reason that if the farmer owns a part of the distributive mechanism through which his corn, hogs, etc., flow to the consumer, he will be able to lubricate that flow and reduce the costs of marketing, thereby augmenting the volume of farm products marketed, or getting for the farmer a larger cut of the consumer's dollar, or both.

It seems that some of the Bureau leaders feel that the present food distributive mechanism is faulty, inefficient, and that they could improve it. C. W. Swank, manager of the Ohio agricultural marketing association, is quoted in an AP interview as saying that the big retail food chains, through their great buying power, "call the shots." They bring pressure to bear on the processor, who in turn presses the farmer, for lower prices. Owning some retail outlets would enable the farmer to bargain with processors, buying from those who deal "fairly" with farmers and refusing to buy from those who do not.

But who are the processors who treat farmers "unfairly"? All farm products sell in highly competitive markets (except as the Federal government with its marketing orders has straitjacketed competition). Packers bid against one another for meat animals. The price of grain is arrived at through competitive bidding in the Chicago Board of Trade. Similar free commodity exchanges price other farm staples.

Swank complained that the turkey farmer cannot find out how much the processor will pay for turkeys until the supermarket sets its price for the housewife. The fact is that any turkey grower, by consulting the market page of a metropolitan daily can learn the going price, either spot or future, of frozen turkeys in the Chicago market. Every supermarket and every processor has to be guided by this price, as would the Farm Bureau in case it entered the food retailing business.

Surely the Farm Bureau leaders realize that there is intense competition between supermarkets, both in selling to consumers and in buying from suppliers. For years the net profit of the food chains has averaged less than two cents per dollar of sales. One would be rash indeed to assume that a neophyte in the business could make enough profit to pay processors more than they are now getting and thus pressure them to pay more to farmers for the raw products.

The implication of the Farm Bureau proposal is that supermarkets should be run for the sake of those who supply the raw product rather than for the profit of the supermarket owners. But is this sound? To make maximum profit, supermarkets must cater to the consumers who are their patrons. All profit businesses are run directly for the profitmakers but indirectly for the consumers, for only to the extent that they please consumers do they make profit. One cannot serve two masters. Business has but one master: the consumer. A business firm that ignores this fact is asking for trouble.

Some will think it outlandish for a farmers' organization to venture into the supermarket business. Not so. It is perfectly proper. The Farm Bureau leaders show themselves to be men of enterprise. But let them go in with the single aim of making money on the investment. Let them not deceive farmers into thinking that by this move they can greatly increase the profitability of farming.

QUESTIONS

To the Editor:

I am thoroughly delighted with the PUBLIC SERVANTS QUESTIONNAIRE. I am going to add two additional questions to my copies, however — if and when I have the pleasure of putting them to use. Those two questions are as follows:

1. Does the public servant believe in stealing?

2. How does the public servant define the word "stealing"?

I have yet to meet someone who would verbally admit that he believed in stealing. Many will respond, "Of course not!" to the inquiry, but a goodly number seem to prefer the indignant, hurtful response such as: "I beg your pardon!", "What kind of a person do you take me for?", "Young lady, I'll have you know that I have spent fourteen years in the service of . . blah blah and blah. . .," "In all my life, I have never had anyone ask me such a question. . .," etc.

It is possible to get some real gems from asking the second question (above). The following are some examples:

a. "What do you mean, 'How do I define the word stealing?' "

B. "Everyone knows what stealing means."

c. "Stealing means 'to steal.' "

d. "Do you think I'm some kind of an idiot?"

e. "Stealing means — well, it means — stealing!"

At this point, a little help is needed. It is perhaps suggested that the answerer means that stealing involves the involuntary confiscation of property — or, in simple language, stealing means that someone takes something that doesn't belong to him. Then the fun really begins. With a few obvious questions it is soon easy for the poor person to find out that he doesn't believe in illegal stealing, but he does believe in legal theft. Then back we go to our original question — rephrased: "Then, you do believe in stealing?" He can not admit that even yet — so he says that he doesn't call "that other stuff" (legal stealing) stealing. And there we are back at the second question: How do you define the word "stealing"?

And there we have my little denouement—all wrapped, tied and delivered — but all too often, there is no one home.

PROSPERITY

To the Editor:

In many respects the American people are experiencing their greatest prosperity. This is true in spite of the fact that there are pockets of extreme poverty and our president says there are 30 million persons whose income is less than the amount thought to be adequate for minimum standards and decent living.

Although many persons are enjoying prosperity it would seem that these areas of poverty indicate basic weaknesses in our general economy. A truly prosperous nation is one in which all citizens have access to the market place, and goods and services for use move freely. The first 65 years of this century have proven that there is very little if any shortage in individuals who have the ability to produce. Therefore, the missing link in overall wide-spread prosperity is in the field of distribution.

Everyone, including the President, is trying to find the missing link and solve the problem. There are many inside and outside of government who would have you believe that educating the unemployed will do the trick. We have the greatest educational facilities and advantages in the world. Obviously, education per se won't do the job. Certainly, education is a vital part of progress, so it would seem that we are educating for production and failing in educating for distribution.

I personally am satisfied that our prosperity in America is due to salesmen. It is the sales forces that cause the distribution in the market place. And yet there are but few of your youngsters entering college who choose selling as a career. Consequently, the fields of selling and business management offer the greatest opportunities for rapid advancement and financial success. The handicaps that our socialistic society place on the open labor market through the demands of union labor and minimum wage laws interfere with the movement of goods and services. Unless goods and services move in every area, there will be no true prosperity.

Truly our educational goal appears to be lopsided. We spend great sums of money training our young men in military tactics and actual maneuvers presumably seeking to eliminate war, and there is no peace.

The government reduced taxes and apparently that move had something to do with our present prosperity. Why doesn't the government eliminate the minimum wages laws and encourage union labor to reduce their demands on the economy? A billion dollars of tax money could be saved and that is important, but since prosperity is based on the production and distribution of goods and services, a truly open labor market would find jobs for millions of idle workers.

This will not happen because human beings are too selfish. The government can reduce taxes and few object. However, unless there is a corresponding reduction in government spending, inflation makes up the difference and there is no real gain.

If any politician even suggested that the laws governing minimum wages and open and closed shops be repealed, he would suffer worse than Barry Goldwater. Why? These things affect the amount of wages individuals get now and the selfishness of human nature will not accept it. This is true even though many laborers in and out of the unions are fully aware that the dollars per hour do not indicate the true wage. People are so constituted that even in highly educated America they apparently live only for today, and are no more concerned about tomorrow than the natives of the Congo.

Come to think about it, I guess there is no reason to get worried about it for the Bible tells us how terrible human beings can get. Jesus Christ, the son of God was crucified by people.

Fortunately, the Bible also tells us why He came and died for us and that is something to rejoice about.

OBSERVATIONS

To the Editor:

We here are fortunate to be able to attend the U. S. Air Academy planetarium and see God's heavenly universe as it was at Christ's birth. We appreciate the courtesy and thoughtfulness of those who operate the observatory.

"Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel (God with us)," Isa. 7:14. "In the fullness of time Christ came" as prophesied, born in Bethlehem of Judea of the lineage of David. Angels sang at his birth and proclaimed, "Peace on earth, good will to men" with God's will in their hearts. Jesus came to redeem Israel and whosoever would accept Christ as their Saviour from sin, and the power of Satan who is the prince of this earth. Jesus is the light of the world and where true Christians obey his commands and carry out his righteous judgments he will be preached, loved, and adored above all else. Our western Christian civilization has never been surpassed, and could be a utopia if all realized their responsibility and his challenge for service.

God is a God of law and order, and of wrath as well as of mercy and grace. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of a living God," in judgment. Dr. Billy Graham said this week, "The midnight of human history may soon be upon us. Gloom and despair are setting down upon the human race. Men's hearts are failing them in fear. Only Christians can experience peace with God."

Many Christians expect this dispensation to soon close with God's judgment on sin: Wars, famine, severe storms, earthquakes, and epidemics are forecast. Desecration of the Sabbath is one sin that will bring God's wrath upon us soon. Christmas has become commercialized above the exaltation and honor of our Saviour. Many local merchants have borne the brunt of taxes, city improvements, community chests, etc., and observed the local custom of being closed on Sunday. There is an undercurrent of objection to some new stores operating seven days a week. We hope this is only during the holidays and will not be repeated, in fairness to all concerned.

ALCOHOLISM

To the Editor:

On behalf of the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism we wish to express our appreciation and thanks for the fine cooperation and coverage during National Alcoholism Information Week.

In addition to the above we thank you for your continued efforts on behalf of one of the four major health problems of this country. We, in Colorado Springs and El Paso County, have our share of problem drinkers who have yet to learn that alcoholics can recover. Your media of communication informs thousands in this area that we could not hope to reach. We know this because persons contacting this agency for help often tell us they read it in the Gazette Telegraph.

BY WHAT RIGHT?

To the Editor:

Has the government gone mad? Can President Johnson be serious in supporting the repeal of the states' rights to pass "right to work" laws? If he is, by what right? Do the votes of those who are unable to get and-or hold a job without a union closed shop determine this right? What about the people whose businesses are to provide these jobs?

Our country attained its present affluence, the greatest in the world, under the principle of individualism. Spiritually and materially, this principle worked. Now are we to make it illegal to be an individualist in areas where enough votes "justify" it? By what right does government propose to make it illegal for a non-union, individual worker to obtain work, or for an individual employer to hire him? The answer is blatantly obvious.

President Johnson, in his campaign, needed the labor vote, or, more specifically, Reuther's support, vocal and material. Reuther wanted more union power in the form of legislation. A deal was made where Reuther supported Johnson. Now Johnson must live up to his end of the deal and try to pass this legislation. It shouldn't be too difficult.

The question of whether this legislation is good or bad, right or wrong, is skillfully evaded with vague, general statements, or ignored. After all, according to our new political philosophy, right or wrong is unimportant as long as a statement or action will buy votes. F. D. R., the leader of this political philosophy, proved this statement rather decisively.

So where do we stand? Americans, supposedly, hold three basic, unalienable rights: Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness. These are NOT collective rights. They are individual rights, and axiomatically prevent anyone from denying these rights to anyone else, by law. The only moral justification for taking these rights, or any part thereof, from anyone, is if he violates the rights of someone else. This retaliatory action is the proper function of government. When the government steps in and takes away these rights, all or in part, on the grounds of the public (collective) good, which is: buying votes, it is wrong. (Do not be misled by reference to traffic laws and the like. This argument is as fallacious as it is old.)

L. B. J.'s "Great Society," like the New Deal and the Fair Deal, is merely a "mixed economy" progression to socialism, whether democratic or totalitarian. The moral justification is that it is for the common good, which is the greatest good for the greatest number, which means 51 per cent of the people can morally enslave the other 49 per cent, which is wrong.

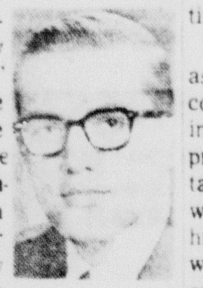
Property Ownership— A Right or a License?

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER



The November 3rd election in California resulted in an amendment to that state's constitution prohibiting the enactment of any "fair housing" laws. While permitting the voters to decide in their quantitative wisdom — whether or not property owners are to be free to dispose of their property as they will is, in itself, a limitation on such a right, nonetheless an existing fair housing law was thus removed from the statute books. And with it came an equally welcome by-product: an official of the federal government announced that all federal urban renewal funds — some $200 million worth — would be withheld from any projects in California, on the ground that federal funds would not be dispensed where there were no government controls over the possibility of discrimination in the housing so constructed.

Such action on the part of the federal government would greatly reduce the number of urban renewal projects in California. If a measure such as this amendment could so offend the bureaucrats as to cause them to withdraw from urban renewal, one might ponder what other effronteries might be undertaken that would lead to further government retreats from the private affairs of men.

To many persons, the question of urban renewal is simply a matter of determining whether or not the government should take action to eliminate slums, blight and other undesirable uses of land. The advocates of such programs assume that if a man has permitted his property to become unsightly, he ought to be forced to either "improve" it, or to have it forcibly taken from him and turned over to others who will convert the property into a "more desirable" use. In short, a man's property is subject to confiscation by the state in order to change the nature of land use so as to satisfy the aesthetic tastes of other persons. If you dislike the looks of a man's unpainted run-down house, why, all you need to do is get the government to take his property and turn it over to someone who will keep the property in a condition more befitting your delicate tastes.

It is never an answer, as far as the anti-property people are concerned, that the people living in these "blighted areas" prefer not to have their homes taken from them. After all, are we to allow a man's right to his property to stand in the way of other men's tastes and sensibilities? It is interesting to note that in a recent vote in Lincoln, Nebraska, on the question of the establishment of a local urban renewal authority, the areas considered to be "blighted" voted against urban renewal by anywhere from five to seven to one margins. The only areas of Lincoln voting for the measure were where the upper income people lived, men and women "sensitive" to the conditions of other men, and determined to do something to alleviate these conditions even though the "unfortunate" were voting overwhelmingly to have their property left alone by these unwanted benefactors.

The principle of urban renewal is that property is not an absolute, inviolable right, but only a license granted by the state to those who would use that property according to the dictates of other men.

In a free and rational society, no man would assume a right to determine how others will use their property. Each man would be recognized as having an absolute right to do (or not do) with his property as he chooses, so long as he does not thus commit a physical aggression upon the rights of other men. If a man disapproves of the use which another makes of his property, his only recourse is to the free market, i.e., he can attempt to purchase the other man's property, make a contract with him regarding the use of land, or resort to any other non-coercive, voluntary means of persuasion.

The issue of urban renewal is not simply whether or not we approve of unsightly land use. Rather, it is the question of whether we are to uphold property ownership as an absolute principle which will not be violated no matter how strongly we desire a change in the use made of another man's property. It is, in essence, the question of whether the individual or the state is to have the final determination as to the use of a man's property. In this connection, the words of William Pitt seem most appropriate: "The poorest man may in his cottage bid defiance to all the force of the crown. It may be frail; its roof may shake; the wind may blow through it; the storms may enter, the rain may enter — but the king of England cannot enter; all his forces dare not cross the threshold of the ruined tenement!"

McCormack May Decide About Leadership

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker John W. McCormack may decide today how far the Democratic leadership will go in cooperating with a group of liberals seeking changes in House rules and reprisals against two Southern Democrats.

McCormack was to return to Washington today. Without his support the changes sponsored by a Democratic study group headed by Rep. John A. Blatnik of Minnesota would have tough sledding in the party caucus next Saturday.

Blatnik said in an interview his group of more than 100 members intends to push its program. But he would make no prediction about the outcome before conferring with McCormack.

Persons close to McCormack represented him as being favorably disposed to one of the major proposals of the Blatnik group. This would break the grip of the Rules Committee on legislation by limiting to 21 days the time it could block a House vote on bills approved by other committees.

To minimize the danger of possible "runaway" committees' bringing undesirable bills to the floor, the speaker would determine what measures would be taken up after a 21-day delay in the Rules Committee.

McCormack also was represented as having no objection to several other proposals involving parliamentary procedure and Democratic party organization in the House.

However, he reportedly wants to take a longer look at proposals to strip the two Southerners of their party standing and seniority, to change the membership ratio on the Ways and Means Committee and to lower the number of signatures needed to make a discharge petition effective.

The Democrats marked for a "purge" if the Blatnik group has its way are Reps. John Bell Williams of Mississippi and Albert W. Watson of South Carolina. Both openly supported Sen. Barry Goldwater's presidential candidacy.

Some Democrats are urging McCormack to support a less drastic plan by forgiving Williams and Watson but putting the party caucus on record as determined to get tough on Democrats who bolt party lines in the future.

'RECOMMENDED' 24-MAN SPACE STATION — America's first 24-man space station with artificial gravity may resemble this rotating three-radial module and hub design. This configuration is recommended by Lockheed-California Company Spacecraft Organization engineers in a study for NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston. The 124-ton orbiting laboratory would have a one- to five-year mission life and would be about 260 nautical miles from earth. Total cost was estimated at $2.85 billion. This would include also ground support, launch, and logistics spacecraft to resupply the station from earth every 90 days. The 79-foot-long station spokes extend from a hub 75 feet high and 33 feet in diameter. The manned modules cradled in the arms are 48 feet long. Six compartments are in each module. Access tubes go to the hub. Seen is a tracked elevator carrier to move men and supplies. Spacesuited men would be able to operate outside. The rectangular panels stretching from the modules are solar arrays to use sunlight for generating station electricity. Inside the hub are logistics spacecraft for resupply from earth. This Lockheed project was a conceptual design study sponsored by NASA for the purpose of long-range planning. Development of a 24-man U.S. space station has not been authorized.

Soviet Plants Fined for Shoddy Goods

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet factory managers have been fined a total of $17,322 for turning out a variety of shoddy merchandise, from overalls to fur hats, the official press reported Monday.

The fines appeared to be part of the new Soviet leadership's drive to give the long-suffering consumer a better deal. The campaign includes:

—The cautious introduction of profits as a gauge of efficiency.

—Warnings to managers that fulfilling the state plan no longer is the only criterion of success.

—Government - ordered price cuts on stockpiled goods that consumers have rejected.

The action against the plant managers took place in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan and was reported in the newspaper Kazakhstan Pravda. Criminal proceedings also have been started against the same officials.

The managers of a jacket, pants, and overalls factory had to pay $6,222 for producing defective merchandise. Officials of a fur plant were assessed $11,100 when the government found that almost one-fifth of the fur hats and coats they produced were no good.

For the first time in its history, the Hotel Edison is underwriting the parking charges for the cars of guests. The new policy will continue after the holiday season—indefinitely.

Red China Accuses U.S. of Intervention

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charged today that President Johnson's administration demonstrated during 1964 that it "has adopted a policy of naked intervention by violence in Latin America."

Peking's New China News Agency said the ouster of Brazilian President Joao Goulart last April was a good example of what happens when "one tries to break away from the U.S. economic grip, attain real independence and safeguard national interests."

The Communists said the first outbreak against the United States occurred in Panama against U.S. occupation of the Canal Zone.

"Like spring thunder, the struggle roared as a dramatic prelude to the year's national democratic revolutionary storm that swept the hemisphere," the agency said.

Mass Sung for Sister M. Luitgard Thomas

Sister M. Luitgard Thomas, OSB, the first administrator of St. Thomas More Hospital in Canon City died at Sacred Heart Hospital in Yankton, S.D., Monday, Dec. 21. She was 78.

A Solemn Requiem Mass was sung in the Bishop Marty Memorial Chapel preceding burial ceremonies in the Sacred Heart Convent cemetery.

Sister M. Luitgard was appointed administrator of St. Thomas More Hospital in 1939 when the Benedictine Sisters took over the old YMCA building, which is still part of the hospital. She maintained this position until 1949 when she was transferred to Tyndall, S.D., where she became the first administrator when the Benedictines took over the operation of St. Michael's Hospital.

Since 1952, Sister M. Luitgard has been serving as personnel director and manager of the storeroom at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Born Aug. 26, 1886 at Sultz, South Russia, Sister Luitgard was five when she came with her family to settle in North Dakota. She entered Sacred Heart Convent at Yankton on June 20, 1906 and made profession as a Benedictine three years later.

A graduate of the Sacred Heart School of Nursing in 1913, Sister Luitgard spent her religious life in the service of the ill.

NORAD News Tells Legend of Mountain

There is an interesting old Indian legend behind the North American Air Defense Command's new combat operations center in Cheyenne Mountain. According to the legend, Cheyenne Mountain is not a mountain at all. It's a huge lizard-dragon called "Thirst."

The fable began centuries ago when water covered the earth. Thirst, described as a sprawling monster with a great creased body, spreading legs and feet, along with a long, toothed tail, was loosed upon the flood.

According to NORAD News Service, which compiled information on the dragon legend, the legendary monster drank day and night until the Manitou, supreme diety of the red man, feared the dragon would drink the earth dry. As the beast drank to quench his thirst, the mountains appeared higher as the waters receded.

With concern that the mighty dragon would drink until no more water was left on earth, the Manitou commanded Thirst to fly from whence he came. But, as it turned out, he was too water-logged to stay off the ground and crashed into a shapeless mass.

Following his crash, Thirst was no longer a living,breathing dragon. . .but was turned to stone. And, if you look southwest from Colorado Springs today, you can see the dragon is still there even though it looks like an ordinary 9,440 foot mountain of granite.

As it turned out, however, the monster's rough, horned back has been toughened by centuries of exposure and was found ideal for NORAD's subterranean stronghold. The underground command post can withstand most any aerospace attack an aggressor could mount against it.

Digging out the insides of Cheyenne Mountain, or Thirst (whichever you prefer), began in 1961. The dynamite drilling rigs turned up evidence that Cheyenne Mountain was indeed once a water-guzzling dragon. An 80-gallon-a-day spring was discovered in one of the access tunnels, saving a lot of water hauling into the cavern for use in cooling and flushing drills.

Since the first digging began three and a half years ago, more than a million tons of rock has been taken out of the hole. It now contains nearly three miles of tunnels and chambers, some of which are 45 feet wide and 60 feet high, roofed by 1,200 feet of solid granite.

Seven thousand tons of steel have been molded into 11 building, all mounted on springs to absorb nuclear blast shock waves. All that's left now before completion is finishing Dragon's" insides.

Then, the next step will be to install the intricate electronic gear which will receive returns funneled in from NORAD networks watching sky and space for signs of hostile action.

Say NORAD News Service," . . .about a year from now, the NORAD battle staff goes to work inside a one-time dragon, and North American security advances a notch or two."

Judge Takes Dim View Of 'Obligation' Shift

Taxpayers 'obligated" to support a man's family because the man doesn't get along with his mother-in-law was something Judge Allan Asher objected to Monday in a hearing in Municipal Court.

The man, James Roberts, 25, 2830 W. Kiowa St., had maintained that if his wife keeps her mother away from his house, he will live with his wife, mother of his three children and also pregnant, and will support her.

Roberts' mother-in-law, Mrs. Pauline Jones, 3408 W. Pikes Peak Ave., had brought charges of disorderly conduct, riotous conduct and breach of peace against him.

She testified that on Dec. 8 her daughter had called her and told her Roberts had left home and only returned occasionally to change clothes and "sleep a little." She said her daughter was without money or a car, and she went to her home and took Mrs. Roberts to the welfare office where she was given assistance.

When she took some medicine to her daughter's home later, Mrs. Jones said her son-in-law ordered her out of the house, cursed her, injured her shoulder, and spit in her face.

Roberts did not deny all these allegations, but did deny spitting in her face. He said he had not left home, that he had been hunting for four days and his wife became angry about this. He further said that Mrs. Jones "talked" his wife into asking help from the welfare department, and that he was "willing" to support his family if his wife keeps her mother away from his house.

"I seriously object that I, as a taxpayer, should be obligated to support your family because you don't get along with your mother-in-law," Judge Asher snapped at Roberts, adding that he felt that most of the court's spectators also objected to this.

He told Roberts that it was apparent he had no respect for anyone or anything with his attitude, and found him guilty of disorderly conduct, imposing a $100 fine.

On the failure of the complaining witness to appear, the judge dismissed charges of riotous conduct and breach of peace against Robert Hayes, 27, 325 S. Cedar St., and charges of riotous conduct and disorderly conduct against Kathleen Mitchell, 46, 325 S. Cedar St.

On requests of complaining witnesses, he dismissed charges against the following: Erwin Nelson, 23, 2800 E. Boulder St., breach of peace; Sammy Scott, 22, 727 E. Dale St., riotous conduct, and Robert Romero, 18, 123 S. 10th St., disorderly conduct, riotous conduct, breach of peace and injury to private property.

Also dismissed were charges of riotous conduct and breach of peace charges against Vetris VanHook, 21, and Robert VanHook, 23, 611 N. Pine St.

Special Testing For TB Slated

The Tuberculosis Association is holding a special testing night Jan. 14 at 809 N. Cascade Ave., from 6 to 8 p.m., especially for adults.

The tests, paid for by Christmas Seal sales, are part of the TB association's program to discover TB and emphysema victims and to help them get under treatment quickly, according to Mary Frances Loughlin, executive director.

Two testing methods are especially valuable. One is the skin test. The other is the Pulmanor or "breathing machine," which tests the individual's capacity to exhale a breath of air and indicates whether respiratory disease is present.

After the special testing night, testing will be available to the schools, plants and public buildings on request.

Showdown May Be Avoided in U.N. Pay Crisis

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The way was reported clear today for the U.N. General Assembly to clean up year-end business without a showdown over the Soviet Union's vote.

Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana was expected to tell the assembly this morning that he had worked out an agreement with key delegates.

Diplomatic sources said the agreement would let the assembly elect four new Security Council members and adopt a stopgap budgetary resolution by the general consent procedure that was used on opening day, Dec. 1, to elect the president and admit Malawi, Malta and Zambia to U.N. membership.

The agreement reportedly included a preliminary informal poll to resolve a race between Jordan and Mali for a council seat. This would give the assembly four unopposed candidates it could elect by acclamation.

That would put off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. The assembly, after finishing the essential business Wednesday would recess until around Jan. 11.

Article 19 says any U.N. member two years behind in total assessments shall have no vote in the assembly. The Soviet Union is more than two years behind because it will not pay assembly assessments to finance the Congo and Middle-East peacekeeping operations, which it contends are illegal. The United States says it should not be allowed to vote.

Diplomatic sources said no progress was made Monday toward settling that dispute. They said Secretary-General U Thant might appeal to the assembly for voluntary contributions to improve U.N. finances, crippled by unpaid assessments.

The sources reported that Quaison-Sackey got the agreement of delegates from Jordan, Mali, the Soviet Union, the United States and others to an informal voting plan.

Delegations would file through Thant's office to drop secret ballots into a box stating their preferences among the candidates for the four council seats that become vacant at the end of the year — the Netherlands to succeed Norway, Uruguay to succeed Brazil, Malaysia to succeed Czechoslovakia and Jordan or Mali to succeed Morocco.

If either Jordan or Mali had something near the required two-thirds majority, the other would withdraw. If they were almost even, they would discuss splitting the two-year term.

The president then would inform the assembly that four countries were unopposed for council seats and, if he heard no objection, would declare them elected.

The informal poll also would enable Indonesia to register opposition informally to Malaysia, which it is pledged to crush. An Indonesian delegate said he still would object to Malaysia's election. Whether he would insist on a formal vote, he said "depends on developments."

Thant, away from his office since Dec. 3 with a duodenal peptic ulcer, returned Monday and resumed negotiations on the basic peacekeeping financial issue. These are expected to go on during the assembly recess.

Robber Escapes With Bag of Coins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — By the pound, it was one of the heftiest bank robberies in years.

Police said a man held up a teller Monday at southside branch of Crocker-Citizens National Bank and ordered her to fill a canvas bg with coins.

She tossed in 50 pounds of them.

Lugging the bag, the robber managed to escape police.

But his reward for all that effort was only $750, police said.

British Newsmen Debate Warren Group Findings

By RUSSELL KIRK

Somewhat amusingly, the report of the Warren Commission on the murder of President Kennedy is hotly debated in Britain nowadays. Many sober and well-educated Englishmen and Scots have been nearly convinced that the commission deliberately suppressed essential evidence in its findings.

One man stirring up this controversy is an American lawyer who goes about speechifying on the subject. His allegations are almost as irresponsible as the rumors circulated by European Communists to the effect that the President was assassinated by the "radical right" or — alternatively — by an eminent member of his own party.

But a much more formidable critic of the Warren Commission's report is Professor Hugh Trevor-Roper, the controversy-loving historian. Though no radical, Trevor-Roper joined an "ad hoc" committee of suspicious Englishmen, almost all of them ardent leftists.

This committee disintegrated upon the publication of the Warren Report, perhaps because it had become clear that the assassination could not be convincingly attributed to any "rightist." Professor Trevor-Roper, nevertheless, continues to impugn the accuracy of the veracity of the Warren Commission, in a series of influential newspaper articles.

That reputable Englishmen can entertain serious doubts about the conclusions of a body of Americans so distinguished as the members of the Warren Commission must suggest the lack of understanding of American life and politics which has afflicted Britain ever since the Second World War.

Another specimen of this ignorance or prejudice appeared recently in a long London Times article about the Republican party. The Times' American correspondent suggested that Senator Goldwater's support came almost exclusively from "the John Birch Society and the Minutemen" — which will vastly surprise at least 26 million of the people who voted for the Republican presidential candidate.

(By the way, gentle reader, have you ever encountrered one of these mysterious Minutemen, who the Times' reporter apparently thinks are legion? I have not.)

Well, I tell my inquiring British friends that comparatively small details of the Warren Commission's findings have been challenged by both conservative and radical Americans.

The chief justice's own imprudence of speech, both immediately after the assassination and months later (when he said that full details might not be made known to the public for decades), caused trouble for the commission.

Some investigators for the commission were odd choices. And it remains debatable whether the report dealt fully with Oswal's sojourn in Soviet Russia: it seems possible that the Communists trained Oswald as a terrorist, to be kept "on tap" for possible deadly employment — though surely the assassination itself was the act of an unbalanced fanatic, unauthorized by Moscow and contrary to Soviet policy.

But this said, the general conclusions of the Warren Commission are almost indisputable by any rational person. Trying to make a mystery of this murder is like silly endeavors to prove that Secretary Stanton arranged Lincoln's assassination, or that Warren Harding was poisoned by someone near and dear to him.

Englishmen would be indignant if a Royal Commission were impugned as a set of fools or liars; and the Warren Commission was no less reputable.

MAN HELD

DENVER (UPI)—Denver police said they were holding in custody a man who took part in a Christmas Eve stickup which resulted in the death of his companion. They identified the man as 27-year-old Carl D. Padilla. Detectives said they believed Padilla was the person who accompanied Christhl R. Vialpando, 29, in an attempted holdup of a Denver pharmacy. A gun battle with the druggist resulted in Vialpando's death, police said.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — During the last Presidential campaign Barry Goldwater spent a lot of time discussing Viet Nam and allowing that if the Administration had a definite policy in that crisis area it was a deep, dark secret withheld from the American voters.

We are reminded of Goldwater's attack because we listened today to Secretary Rusk discuss the new Saigon crisis. All that came through loud and clear were fuzzy generalities about the free world's stake in Southeast Asia and how history has shown that Communist aggression must always be checked.

The impression was left, at least on this reporter, that United States policy in Viet Nam still was in a sort of state of flux, just as it has been for some time. Otherwise, the exact contours of the Administration's policy could certainly have been spelled out by the Secretary of State, without fear of any conflict with what President Johnson might say while down on the LBJ ranch for Christmas.

The net result of such evasive tactics by Rusk is probably to increase, not diminish, the widespread speculation that unless there is going to be a stable government in Saigon that wants U.S. military assistance continued, we may pull out.

The truth is that there has been a marked shift of emphasis recently on the reasons for the United States involvement in Southeast Asia. The emphasis used to be that it was to this country's own vital interests to be in that area in a significant military and economic way. Now, at least in connection with South Viet Nam, there is more than a suggestion that unless we are wanted, we are prepared to go home.

In order to show how there has been well - founded suspicion of a significant change in emphasis, what Johnson said in April, 1961, Vice Presidential report bears repeating.

This report was made to John F. Kennedy after LBJ's fact-finding tour of the area. The recommendations in it figured strongly in Kennedy's decision to accelerate military assistance to South Viet Nam.

"NO ALTERNATIVE TO U.S. LEADERSHIP"

These were Johnson's conclusions in his memo to the White House at the time:

"The battle against Communism must be joined in Southeast Asia with strength and determination to achieve success there — or the United States, inevitably, must surrender the Pacific and take up our defenses on our own shores. Asian Communism is compromised and contained by the maintenance of free nations on the subcontinent. Without this inhibitory influence, the island outposts — Philippines, Japan, Taiwan — have no security and the vast Pacific becomes a Red sea."

The memo went on to say that "there is no alternative to United States leadership in Southeast Asia. Leadership in individual countries — or the regional leadership and cooperation so appealing to Asians — rests on knowledge and faith in United States power, will and understanding."

In the last few days, it can be reliably reported, the adminstration's "thinking," at least in relation to our big Viet Nam commitment has been strangley different from that of 1961.

It is pretty much along the line that we could, if necessary, pull out of Viet Nam and still not have to worry about the Pacific becoming a Red sea, to use Johnson's 1961 phrase.

WOULD LIKE TO BRING 22,000 HOME

Johnson is now said to feel that it would not be wise to come home from Viet Nam, although we are willing and anxious to bring 22,000 uniformed men home once the Communists leave their neighbors alone. And while our forces remain there, we don't however, want to either enlarge the war or retreat from our commitments.

The White House conclusion is that as long as the Viet Namese people are trying to resist envelopment, it is our desire and duty to help them.

What should be noted is that the business about the United States' vital self interest in Southeast Asia has been subordinated recently, as if it were of secondary importance to whether a country wants us and has a stable government to boot.

Liberals Cause Stigma to Word Conservatism

By THURMAN SENSING

Stirred by the narrow win of John F. Kennedy to the presidency in 1960, the liberals — that is to say, the blood brothers of the socialists and the communist accommodaters — began feverishly to determine how they might best break down what they deemed the "conservative rebellion" that was going on in the country. They could envision an end to their ambitions if this were not done.

As an aside, let it be noted that by constant attack on the word "conservative" itself, they have since then convinced even some of sound conservative philosophy that the term should be dropped and some other word used in its stead, that it has now come about that the term "conservative" has a certain stigma attached to it and that it would be harmful to continue using it.

The trouble is not with the word "conservative"; the trouble is that those who believe in the conservative philosophy simply haven't got what they mean by "conservative" across to the people generally.

As far as I am concerned, I like the word conservative. Conservatism is patriotism. To be a conservative is to be one who wants to conserve what is best of the past and built on it for the future; is to be one who believes that the principles enunciated and adopted by the men who founded our government are just as true now as they were then, and will be just as true a thousands years from now as they are today.

A liberal, on the other hand, believes that there is nothing in the past worth conserving, that the principles on which our government was founded are now outmoded and outworn, and must be replaced by other principles.

These other principles, as identified by the so-called liberals, always turn out to be the principles of socialism. They seem to think these socialist principles are new, whereas they are actually much older than conservative principles. They have been tried time and time again throughout history and have always failed.

Abraham Lincoln did not use the words conservative and liberal, but he stated the problem quite well when he said:

"If destruction be our lot, we ourselves must be its author and its finisher. As a nation of free men, we must live through all time or die by suicide."

If we adopt the principles of liberalism we will no longer be free men, and we shall indeed be committing suicide. However, the attack on conservatism has gone on with intensified vigor the past four years, and is continuing.

The most dangerous attack, due to the financial and political power back of it, was instigated by the Reuther Memorandum. In the fall of 1961, Walter and Victor Reuther called on Attorney General Robert Kennedy and laid out an oral plan on how to destroy the "conservative rebellion."

Mr. Kennedy requested that the plan be submitted in writing, which was done on December 19th. Except for distribution to a chosen few, the memo was kept secret for almost two years.

Some of the courses of action they recommended the government take were:

Muzzle the military by issuing orders against speeches or articles opposing Communism;

Stop listing pro-communist organizations exclusively as subversive and add the names of conservative organizations;

Stop the flow of funds to conservative organizations by finding some pretext for removing tax-exemption;

Use the power of the FCC to investigate radio and television stations carrying conservative programs;

Curb the activities of J. Edgar Hoover who "exaggerates the domestic Communist menace at every turn and contributes to tht public's frame of mind." At least four of these suggestions are in operation now, and the proof is overwhelming.

This attack on conservatism is being actively carried on by Group Research, Inc., an arm of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education, and by the recently formed national Council for Civic Responsibility, sponsored by the tax-exempt Public Affairs Institute. Both these organizations are doing their best to destroy the conservative philosophy in this country.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices were mostly lower in futures trading on the Board of Trade today as liquidation of long positions in soybeans and wheat found little buying zest.

Commission houses were principal sellers of soybeans as export shipping tonnage last week proved disappointing.

Catlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 1 car, corn 97, oats 12, rye none, barley 22, and soybeans 12.

HUNTERS, TAKE NOTICE

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—When dove hunters enter the T. G. Lee pasture land to hunt, they find the following sign:

"During the first phase of this year's dove season, one enterprising sportsman (?) killed a cow on this property with a load of birdshot fired at point-blank range. In order to show the cow's owner that the majority of the hunters in this area disapprove of such wanton destruction of valuable property, it has been suggested by some of your fellow hunters that a collection be taken up to make at least partial restitution. All donations are entirely voluntary, there being no obligation whatsoever — except to set the record straight."

The idea for the gesture came from Col. Ted Tatum, vice commander of the Air Rescue Service headquartered at Orlando Air Force Base. He is being assisted with the project by Vance Corbin, a retired Air force officer now a member of the Florida Game Commission.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market weakness increased early this afternoon in dull trading.

Fractional losses shown in the morning widened to declines of a point or more among key stocks.

Wall Street seemed to be giving up hopes for a traditional yearend rally and traders were reverting to last gasp profit taking.

Steels, coppers, tobaccos, drugs, electrical equipments, oils and electronics were among the losers.

Losses of more than a point were taken by Anaconda, Kennecott and Sears, Roebuck.

U.S. Smelting dropped 2 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 1.0 at 32.2 with industrials off 2.2, rails off .2 and utilities off .1.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 3.77 at 863.24.

Fractional gains were held by American Airlines, International Paper, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Homestake, International Paper, International Nickel, Caterpillar and Xerox.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds continued to drift aimlessly.

Change in Medicare Plans Being Sought

DENVER (AP) — State Welfare Director Thomas Bell said today proposed changes in the state's assistance program for the aged have been sent to federal authorities.

He drafted the revisions to meet a directive by the Colorado Welfare Board last week. Bell said he expected to be told by Jan. 15 whether the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will approve the changes.

Federal matching funds withheld so far amount to $1.5 million Gov. John A. Love said the state may get part of this when the changes are approved, but may lose as much as $800,000.

The revisions involve benefits for recipients temporarily out of the state and the method of paying nursing home patients their $10 monthly expense allotment.

2,000 Marooned Persons Rescued

MADRAS, India (AP) — Two Indian navy ships have rescued nearly 2,000 persons marooned on an island off southern India by tidal waves last week.

Officials estimate the death toll at 300, including 115 passengers on a train that was washed away with the railroad bridge to the mainland.

FBI Asks Direction In Morals Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has asked police departments to spell out the precise nature of morals offenses against government employes when submitting fingerprint cards to the FBI's central print files.

A bureau spokesman said Monday the request merely reiterates a policy of long standing and has nothing to do with the recent Walter Jenkins case. Jenkins resigned as an assistant to President Johnson after two arrests on morals charges were made public. His resignation was asked by the President.

The same instructions about arrests apply, for instance, to civil rights cases, the spokesman said when asked about the notice of the FBI's December Law Enforcement Bulletin.

'Talent Hunt' For Cabinet Is Launched

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson had a lot of officials and their wives sitting on the edge of their chairs today — some with a sense of foreboding, some in hopeful expectation.

Much excitement was aroused by word that the President plans a shakeup in his "little Cabinet;" that he will make many new appointments to such posts as undersecretary, assistant secretary and other administrators.

The President has ordered a "talent hunt." He wants, so far as possible, to recruit his new administrators from men and women already in the government.

So the question arose: Who will get the ax, and who will be promoted to jobs paying as high as $30,000 a year?

It is one of the hardest secrets to crack, because the President is playing his cards so close to his chest.

Johnson dipped into government ranks in making two of his most recent appointments. Saturday he named William J. Driver to head the Veterans Administration. Monday night he selected Sheldon S. Cohen to be collector of internal revenue.

Driver, who had been deputy VA administrator, succeeds John S. Gleason Jr., who resigned. Cohen, chief counsel of the IRS, succeeds acting Commissioner Bertrand Harding, who had been serving since Mortimer Caplin resigned last July.

Some doubt is expressed as to how sweeping the "little Cabinet" shakeup will be. All such officials submit their resignations, as a matter of formality, when a president is newly inaugurated. The President can give a man the gate by merely accepting the resignations.

But will he do this, for example, to Charles S. Murphy, undersecretary of agriculture? Murphy was a top manager of Johnson's campaign for the presidential nomination in 1960.

Or to Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of LBJ's idol?

Or to W. Averell Harriman, longtime Democratic stalwart and specialist in foreign affairs? He is an undersecretary of state. Insiders take into consideration talk that relations between him and Johnson are not close.

Without firing anybody, the President can put the LBJ brand on much of the government when he fills a long list of existing vacancies.

These include about 15 federal judgeships, nearly as many little Cabinet positions and seven ambassadorships.

Among the vacancies are: deputy attorney general, two undersecretaries of the Treasury, assistant secretary of state, undersecretary of the Army, two seats on the Interstate Commerce Commission, one on the Federal Power Commission, one on the Tariff Commission, one on the Civil Aeronautics Board, administrator of the General Services Administration and executive director of the Civil Rights Commission.

Redwoods Grove Motel Becomes Flood Shelter

KLAMATH, Calif. (AP) — The far-famed stately redwoods located six miles north of Klamath on scenic coastal Highway 101, attract thousands of tourists in drowsy summertime.

Today the motel at the famous redwood grove is an around-the-clock shelter and kitchen for hundreds left homeless by raging waters of the Klamath River.

When the river swept the villages of Klamath and Klamath Glen into the Pacific a week ago, "The Trees" motel and restaurant was back in business. But not commercially.

Owner Jack Morris, who had closed for the winter, isn't asking for any money, in keeping with the spirit that has provided relief to flood-destitute families in stricken Northern California.

"Morris, his wife and a cook, Mrs. Rose Rode, have been helping and cooking constantly for these people," reported photographer Pete Palmquist, who was airlifted by Marine helicopter into the isolated resort.

Palmquist said that meals were being provided daily for 200 persons, 75 of whom were bedding down at the motel. The others were in nearby private homes or vacant buildings.

"These are hardy people, though" Palmquist said by telephone. "The able-bodied men, as soon as they could, went back to clean up and salvage the remains."

Outside of the resort, and the sites where their homes once stood, the refugees are marooned.

Highway 101 was severed when the 1,000-foot concrete Bear Bridge collapsed into the Klamath's frenzied waters.

Their northern exit ends 20 miles away at Crescent City, a community of 3,000 also stranded because of wrecked highways.

"But I didn't hear a single complaint from these people," Palmquist said. "Most of them have nothing, but they are saying 'Well, you should have seen my neighbor, he really had it bad.'"

The Klamath River refugees mostly work in lumber mills or cater to the area's tourist-oriented businesses.

"Now," Palmquist reported, 'the beaches as far as eye can see are littered with bits of everything. The houses are just broken pieces — splinters.

"It's all come down the river to the sea, and the sea has put it back on the beaches."

The motel owner said that the homeless can stay there as long as necessary. The Red Cross has began relief work.

The refugees, who are used to faring for themselves, are returning to their own smashed villages as soon as receding waters will permit.

More Hostages Still Alive in Congo War

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Mercenary soldiers on a rescue mission in the northern Congo today radioed that about half the 160 white hostages of the rebels in the region between Paulis and Wamba were still believed to be alive.

But the fate of 80 other missionaries and merchants still was unknown, the radio message said. A United Nations doctor was reported to have been slaughtered by the rebels, who have butchered more than 160 Europeans and Americans in the past two months.

A column of Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe's Belgian and South African mercenary fighters is driving southeast from Paulis, capital of Uele Province, to Wamba, about 60 miles away.

LITERACY PROJECTS

NEW YORK (UPI)—A worldwide seminar for directors of literacy programs in many countries has been announced by the Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature (Lit-Lit) of the National Council of Churches.

About 30 literacy directors of church-sponsored programs will meet in Kitwe, Zambia, next June for the seminar to share their experiences, study new developments in literacy work and draw up plans for expanding the work.

HEAT-IN-THE-BAG—Foods can even be cooked in plastic bags these days. This shows sauced "heat-in-bag" vegetables being cooked while immersed in boiling water. Bag serves as a cooking utensil, retaining tastes and flavors. (3M Company Photo)

Plastic Bag Cooking Is Great Success

Heating and cooking frozen foods in plastic bags snowballed in 1964, resulting in more than 250 million bags of these foods being purchased during the year and lessening the need for cooking equipment and expert chefs.

The "heat-in-bag" idea, after a slow start several years ago, will cause about 300 million of these plastic packaged frozen foods to be consumed in 1965, marketing experts predict. They estimate one billion "heat-in-bag" foods will be consumed in 1968.

The idea, first tried in this country in a New York restaurant, consists of simply heating frozen food in a sealed plastic bag for a few minutes in boiling water and then serving it. The boilable bag retains the tastes and flavors, and serves even as a cooking utensil.

But this is just the start of what will be accomplished with flexible plastic bags, according to L. M. Berlin, a marketing manager of 3M Company, a leading pioneer of the concept. For instance, researchers are now working with the "bake-in-bag" method which soon may enable the public to bake foods, even roasts and chickens, in heat - resistant plastic bags which can be placed in ovens. Because of the plastic's transparency the housewife can tell at a glance how her baking is doing.

Moreover, the "thaw-in-bag" idea may be launched in 1965. For instance, frozen tomato slices are expected to be introduced which can be quickly thawed by running water over the plastic bag of slices shortly before serving them. The tomatoes are to be frozen by a new process involving liquid nitrogen. Previously, there was no method of defrosting frozen tomatoes without their becoming mushy, it was pointed out. "Thaw-in-bag" mushrooms also are being experiemented with.

A chief reason for the popularity of the plastic bag is its expanding use by both small and major food processors throughout the nation, Berlin believes. The breakthrough for the concept came when the Green Giant Company introduced an array of sauced vegetables packaged in a plastic bag. The air-tight bag allows the homemaker to cook the vegetables while they are being heated in water. The bag even retains the texture and color of the food, Green Giant reports.

The plastic material of the bags must be of a tough film with high barrier properties. Film, such as 3M's "Scotchpak" brand polyester film, was developed primarily for such packaging, Berlin pointed out. Despite heating of the film, the edges of the bag remain cool enough for easy handling.

The idea has caught on so rapidly that processors, restaurant owners and even drive-ins have adopted it from coast to coast. One company, Nesbitt, is putting fudge into bags of "Scotchpak" film and selling it to drive-ins and other establishments—enabling customers to make their own hot-fudge sundaes. The fudge is heated in the bag in boiling water at the drive-in, and then given to the customer who dispenses it onto the ice cream — piping hot.

One small processor attempted to package complete meals in "heat-in-bag" packages. All of the meal could be heated in minutes simulataneously, and in one utensil. Another processor, Armour, offers more than 20 different dishes in compartmentallized bags to the institutional field; one side of the bag contains the meat and the other side the vegetable or potatoes.

The processor often serves as a central commissary where the meals are prepared, frozen, packaged and then ditsributed to resorts and other small eating establishments which do not wish to hire expert cooks or utilize much kitchen equipment.

A Chicago restaurateur has about 100 different "heat-in-bag" items on his menu. He packages hundreds of these items in "Scotchpack" film and stores them in freezers to meet peak customer periods easily and economically without need for extra help. And there's less cleanup since no pots or pans are dirtied, and the bag can be easily disposed of.

More and more processors are eyeing the consumer market, meaning the U. S. shopper will be seeing an increasing variety of these foods in supermarkets throughout the nation in 1965.

There'll be all types, even the sloppy Joe hamburger and soups packaged in a bag for quick heating. The price of these foods is expected to level off as firms continue to compete in this field. Experts predict one of these days the price of some "heat-in-bag" foods will be comparable to the most competitive priced lines.

Helping the idea expand is an increasing amount of new equipment for rapidly packaging, filling and sealing "heat-in-bag" foods. Some are fully automatic while others are simple little gadgets.

In fact, the busy housewife now can buy a small kitchen appliance to almost instantly seal bags of food. It comes in a kit containing bags, labels and "heat-in-bag" recipe booklet. The heat-sealing appliance can be installed on counter or wall. Waste is reduced since leftovers can be quickly packaged this way.

Berlin said the "heat-in-bag" idea was also undergone extensive study in hospital feeding programs. Hospitals can have flexibility and variety in menus and yet save time and money, he pointed out. One major food processor already has introduced a line of "heat-in-bag" foods for hospitals with low sodium and low calorie ingredients.

Just Reward Due Those Who Do So Much for You

By SAM CAMPBELL

Dear Senator: In this season of good feeling, I wish to express my gratitude to you for all the things that you have done for us home folks while you were away in Washington.

I wish to thank you especially for the U. S. Forest Service that musters Indians, bulldozers, and tanker planes year after year to keep our woodlands from burning up. This is one government service that proves its true value. I just don't know what the country did about its forests in the days before the white man arrived.

Senator, I appreciate your activity in messing around with the packaging and labeling business, particularly for foodstuffs. I tell you our supermarkets are offering us such a wide variety of choice that a fellow can eat something different every day if he wants to.

There are so many different packages on the shelves that I get dizzy when I walk into a store. If it wasn't for the government stepping in and showing me how to spend my money, I reckon I would have to rely on manufacturers with a good reputation.

According to the paper, the government has filed a batch of new anti-trust suits. One thing we're all against is monopoly. I note that you vote consistently for appropriations to support the trust busters. When pie-cutting time rolls around again, have the justice boys look into the mail business. I have a sneaking suspicion that one mail company is keeping all the others out.

The big city columnists say that you are going over the budget with a fine-tooth comb. Good for you. I don't say anything is wrong, but it does stand to reason that things do get out of kelter if somebody doesn't check up once in a while.

I took a pencil the other day and figured out that on a $100 billion budget, if you gave 30 minutes to each million dollar item, you could wind up considering this fiscal year's estimates in 1971. Of course you would have to work 24 hours a day. So believe me, I'm grateful for all the effort you put in.

I don't say anybody would take a dollar that he didn't have coming, but it pays to be careful.

But Senator, mere words are insufficient to show appreciation. My neighbors and I got to talking what we could do to repay you. We decided to get you a new car. Sure hope you will like what we picked out. It has wire wheels, a 560 horsepower engine, radio-TV, hot and cold running eggnogs, air conditioning, and refrigeration.

We want you to know it's all yours. You can take delivery on your next trip back from Washington. The dealer was a little fussy. He wanted us to have you fill out the enclosed power of attorney so that we could sign your name to the payment check. Please oblige.

Many thanks to you from the folks back home, and a very prosperous New Year.

Local Couple Attend Seminar For Distributors

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bartlett, of 2605 E. Bijou St., have just returned from a trip to Grand Rapids, Mich., where they attended a training Seminar for newly qualified "Direct Distributors."

The all-expense trip and seminar was earned by the Bartlett's on their production results as head of a substantial group engaged in the sale of Amway Products manufactured and distributed by Amway Corp. of Ada, Mich.

The Bartlett's are associated with Dean Enterprises, and have distributorships under them in more than ten states, stretching from New York to California.

Amway Corp. is said to be the fastest growing organization in America engaged in the manufacturing and distribution of quality products in the cleaning field for home and industry. It started only six years ago with the now well known L. O. C. (liquid organic concentrate) followed closely with SA-8, a powder washing compound for automatic washing machines that is 100 per cent bio-degradable. Some 75 additional products have been added to the Amway line.

Since Amway cleaning products do not contribute to the water polution problem they have gained favor with many state officials across the nation.

The Bartletts have been residents of Colorado Springs for many years. They joined with the Dean organization soon after C. K. Dean introduced Amway to the Colorado Springs market in 1961 and have enjoyed an increasingly good business from the start.

They expect to expand their operation not only here in Colorado Springs but also into many more states.

Thousands to Benefit From Treasury Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of businessmen will benefit from a Treasury tax ruling scheduled about mid-January. It was learned Saturday that the ruling will liberalize the regulations which govern how much businessmen may deduct for cost of equipment.

Companies probably will save $200 million to $400 million on returns filed after June 30.

Cary Grant Does Not Believe in Film Censors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those seeking a clampdown on movie morals will find no ally in Cary Grant. He doesn't believe in telling film makers what they can and cannot do.

Grant is a man of many guises. The most famous of these is the film star, impeccable, stylized, a master of technique.

There is also Grant the businessman, who from his luxurious suite at Universal City plans and follows his films from inception to merchandizing.

Then there is Grant the philosopher, and he was the one I engaged in a discussion of the coming crisis in movie morals. The news columns have been full of it, especially with the National Legion of Decency's condemnation of "Kiss Me, Stupid" and its blast at the film industry's failure to censor itself.

No Cary Grant movie has ever run afoul of the censors. You might expect him to side with the forces of restraint. He doesn't.

"I make my own sort of films," he said; "films that appeal to me. If others wish to make a different kind of product and dare to risk the public's wrath, then it's up to them.

"If the public doesn't want their product, then they shouldn't go to see it. I make no claim to know who, or what, is right or wrong, or where lie the precise boundaries between decency and indecency, morality or immorality. I adhere to my own without, I trust, offense to my fellow man."

Grant believes that the good pictures will always make money, and that is the kind he aims to make. As to the films that traffic in sex and violence, he makes no judgment.

"I'm not so sure that if a young person sees a crime picture that he will want to go out and repeat the crime," said Grant. "On the other hand it's very possible that be seeing violence on the screen he will be divested of the violence that is within him.

"Kids ar so inhibited nowadays that they have to bust out in some way. It's much better that they let themselves go at a violent movie than to bust out with tire chains.

"That's why the Beatles are so good for teen-agers: they can release their energies by screaming at those fellows."

Duke of Windsor Tours Houston Area

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP — The Duke of Windsor took a one-hour automobile tour of Houston Monday and when he returned to Methodist Hospital he said he enjoyed the outing "very well."

It was the first time he had left the hospital since undergoing an abdominal operation Dec. 16.

The former king of England was accompanied by the duchess, hospital administrator Ted Bowen, nurse Pat Temple, and the driver.

The duke, who is 70, is expected to leave the hospital soon. He has been making "excellent progress in all respects," a medical advisory said.

Nigerian Glue Being Tested In Big Dispute

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The glue that holds together Nigeria, Africa's most populous nation, is being tested in a dispute over postponement of the country's first general election in four years of independence.

The four regional governors and premiers scheduled an emergency meeting in Lagos today to decide whether the polling would be held Wednesday as scheduled.

The meeting was called after President Nnamdi Azikiwe and Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tfawa Balwa failed to agree on a postponement.

Balewa, who represents the Moslem north, favors going on with the voting. President Azikiwe, a southerner, wants it delayed at least a month.

The issue threatens to split the north from the rest of the country. Most seats in the last Parliament were controlled by the north because of its larger population, and the northern-based Nigerian National Alliance is favored to win the tion.

Leaders of the southern United Progressive Grand Alliance called for a postponement of the voting to check on alleged irregularities. They claimed a 1964 census which listed 29 million of the country's 55 million people as living in the north was inaccurate.

The southern leaders also claimed the manipulation of nomination papers left some northern candidates unopposed.

Northern leaders denied the charges and said an election after Jan. 3 would be impossible because the Moslem holy month of Ramadan which begins then.

TV Viewers Get More Sophisticated

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Kennedy, as a large number of women and some men housebound with head colds know, is the nice-looking, pleasant-mannered fellow who each afternoon presides over an NBC program during which studio contestants and celebrity guests team up to play a word game.

Kennedy likes his job, enjoys riding herd on the players and hopes "You Don't Say" will go on forever.

"Before I got this show," he confessed, "I made quite a good living making bad pilots — trying out game shows that never went anywhere. I think I made a bad pilot for every producer in Hollywood."

He worked his way into the specialized field from an announcer's job and doing commercials.

Now he puts in a couple of very busy days a week taping the five day output of "You Don't Say." His preparation consists of making certain his sports jackets are wrinkle-free.

"Nobody sees me from the waist down," he said.

"So I just keep eight jackets at the studio and change them between shows."

The celebrity guests, particularly the women, also know about this costuming dodge and are likely turn up with five different blouses.

"I was surprised one day — and so was the studio audience — when Lizbeth Scott walked on stage for a show. She was wearing a sequin top, very elaborate, and a pair of well-worn blue jeans," Kennedy said.

He observed that viewers, particularly the daytime variety, have become more sophisticated about game shows.

"You can't take off with a half-baked idea," he said. "The show has got to swing and it must make sense. There are no more big money prizes and its hard to build much novelty into games now."

Like all daytime television performers, Kennedy longs for night-time exposure.

"Daytime is a different world — a nice world — but lots of people never see a telvision program bfore 7:30 in the evening," he said.

"I've Got a Secret," CBS' perennial panel show, keeps rolling along year after year. For awhile this fall it looked a if Garry Moore's replacement, Steve Allen, would change the character of the program. He didn't give the long-playing panel much to do. Now things seem back to normal and the show probably will go on another 10 years.

Pasadena Will Try Special Kids' Program

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — New Year's Eve, traditionally time for blowing off steam, could be a little different this year in Pasadena, where churchmen hope the steam will be constructive, interesting and sober prior to Rose Bowl festivities.

Their idea: Get the kids off the street — and let 'em talk.

Young people seeking action on New Year's Eve can find it at five all-night coffee houses opened by the Pasadena area churches. Their main product will be talk. The topic? Anything.

Called the "Let's Talk Coffee House Project," its goal is to draw young people in for coffee, folk singing and bull sessions — but no sermons.

The five locations are on Colorado Boulevard, where young people — and families as well — begin reserving curb space early New Year's Eve for the Tournament of Roses parade on New Year's Day.

The curb sitters, especially the older teen-agers, usually take their fun as they find it and it sometimes leads to trouble.

Staffing each of the coffee houses will be at least one minister and one or more seminary students from nearby Claremont or Pasadena.

The men behind the idea are the Rev. George B. Erickson, minister of education at a South Pasadena church, and R. Donald Weber, assistant to the president of Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena.

"The church ought to do something about college-age kids wandering around town on New Year's Eve, looking for something to do," Weber suggested.

"We hope the conversation will cover some pretty deep subjects," said Erickson.

They emphasized that the project is being run on a by-guess-and-bygosh basis, and that they wonder "how we are ever going to get the kids to come in," Erickson said.

Sometimes, he said, "we think there will be so many we will have a hard time keeping them out. I think we can have some good talks."

Erickson pointed to recent free speech demonstrations at the University of California's Berkeley campus as evidence that young people are thinking seriously.

"All you have to do is read American history to find parallels," he said. "You might start with the Boston tea party, for instance."

Rains, Snows Dampen Wide Areas of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and snow dampened wide areas across northern sections of the nation today.

In some of the flood-stricken sections of the West Coast, snow and colder weather added to the misery of the refugees from high water. Snow fell in northern New England, the northern Great Lakes, the north central states and from the central and northern Rockies to the Pacific Northwest.

Mostly fair weather prevailed from Virginia and Florida to the southern plains.

The Weather Bureau issued hazardous driving warnings, with snow and freezing drizzle, in northern sections of the Midwest.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 6 below zero at Great Falls, Mont., to 72 at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Second Highest Auto Death Toll Reported

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's traffic deaths over the weekend totaled 578, second highest toll for a three-day Christmas holiday weekend.

The record toll for a three-day Christmas holiday period is 609 set in 1955. This year's total compared with 396 fatalities reported in a three-day non-holiday weekend earlier this month.

The National Safety Council had estimated between 550 and 650 deaths during the 78-hour holiday period. For a similar period for the New Year's holiday weekend the council estimated a traffic death toll of from 300 to 360.

Russians Try to Wrap Up Crown

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Czechoslovakia's free-wheeling National hockey team braces for a last ditch stand tonight when the Czechs meet Russia in a struggle that could end the championship race in the week-long International Hockey Tournament at the Broadmoor World Arena.

The Czechs survived the battle of the losers Monday night, edging Canada 4-3 in a contest that had a low-key start but ended on a high-frequency note. The victory kept Czechoslovakia in contention for the tournament title, but that chase could be past history by late this evening. Russia's slick sextet, which carries a 2-0 record, needs only a victory over the Czechs to wrap up the championship. And the Soviets, who rapped the same club 8-2 in the tournament's opening game last Saturday, will be highly favored to get it.

If the Czechs appear to be breathing hard when they take the ice tonight, that can be credited to Monday night's blistering finish which had just about everyone in the World Arena crowd of 2,700 breathless. Canada's Nationals, sluggish for the better part of two periods, wiped out three-fourths of a healthy 4-0 lead in slightly under six minutes in a furious comeback and kept the same relentless pressure on the horn.

That final flurry was a complete turnabout from the early action. In the opening period it was the Czechs who were pressuring constantly, while taking advantage of stretchs of sloppy passing by the seemingly-weary Canadians. Only excellent work in goal by Canada's Ken Broderick kept Czechoslovakia from breaking through in the early minutes of the contest. Broderick kicked out three steaming shots in the first five minutes and later in the period turned in a spectacular stretch of goaltending as he stopped three straight shots, all from within 20 feet.

The Czechs finally broke on top with 9:36 gone in the period when Jaroslav Jirik cornered a stray puck directly in front of the Canadian goal and fired home a 15 foot shot for the first of three unassisted goals Czechoslovakia was to score.

Meanwhile the Czech defense was breaking up virtually every rush by the Canadians before they gained momentum. Only rarely did Canada get anything resembling a good shot and at the start of the second period they began firing away from long range, with several cracks coming from as far away as the blue line.

It was early in that stanza that the Czechs suddenly put together the flurry that was to construct the bulge that eventually became necessary. With just 3:43 elapsed and the Canadians apparently picking up steam, Jan Klapac picked up a deflected puck midway between the goal lines and sped down the ice to ram home a backhand shot from 35 feet on the left side.

The Canadians had scarcely had time to digest that before disastor struck again. With 4:34 gone Klapac fed a nifty pass toward the front of the net which Josef Golonka caught and sent flying past Broderick.

With Canada trying desperately to get an offense organized, Czechoslovakia put the game seemingly out of reach midway in the period. Jeri Holik grabbed a free puck just in back of the goal line, quickly broke through the scattered Canadian defense, and faked Broderik out of position to deposit the fourth goal from close range.

But, just when the Canadians appeared to be shattered, the revival was launched. Reg Abbott got the first tally with less than three minutes remaining in the second period after a feed by Dineen.

That brought the crowd to life and by early in the third stanza it was caught up in a flurry of excitement. Ross Parke put the Canadians on the board again with a 15 footer from the left side after taking a pass from near the back of the goal. That came with just 1:38 gone and just over a minute later Dineen trimmed the margin to one with a blistering shot from the right side.

From that point the Canadians battled desperately to break through the cautious Czech defense, but with little success. With 1:41 remaining Coach Gord Simpson pulled Broderick and with just 40 seconds to go the Czechs were shorted a man when Jirik went to the penalty box for hooking.

Then with 30 seconds left, it appeared as though the Canadians had tied it on a scramble in front of the goal but the officials ruled that the puck had been held before it was knocked loose and with that went the final Canada threat.

Tigers, Chicago in Tourney Opener

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College brings a rare holiday tournament attraction to Colorado Springs tonight as the Tigers play hosts for a four-team struggle that will take place over two days at the Palmer Gymnasium.

Red Eastlack's CC squad, a casualty in three straight starts in the recent California Western Tournament at San Diego, will cap tonight's first round action in a battle with the University of Chicago. Knox College of Galesburg, Ill. and Grinnell College of Grinnell, Iowa, will meet in the opener at 7:30. The first night winners will then vie for the championship in the concluding contest, which is again set for 9.

This will be the fourth straight winter for this holiday tournament which has been played on a revolving basis. CC is the final of the four participants to act as host and the Tigers will also be trying for their first championship. The local school also abandoned its usual game site, the City Auditorium, for this affair and both night's activities will take place at the 2,500 seat Palmer Gymnasium.

Only one of the four teams appearing will carry a better than .500 record into tonight's action. Knox College has won two of three starts while both Grinnell and Chicago U. have broken even in early games. CC, following the disappointing trip to the West Coast, can claim just a single victory in six starts.

The Tigers, however, showed increasingly strong balance during their battles with the strong field at San Diego. Guard Steve Schilder and forward Chris Grant, not usually top scorers, came on with big games during the Tigers' losses to Cal Western, Southern Utah, and Hamilton Air Force Base. Earlier CC had dropped decisions to New Mexico University, Colorado State College, and Oklahoma Christian. The Tigers' lone victory came at the expense of St. Mary's of the Plains.

Eastlack has been using at least seven players in fairly equal stints over the past several outings. Dave Herrington, who was the leading scorer before a subpar week in San Diego, opens at guard along with Schilder. The front line comes from among Susemihl, Grand, Garry Bouton, John Anderson, and Phil LeCuyer. The latter is a former all-state player from Greeley who just joined the Tiger forces before the holidays.

The other tournament teams shape up thusly:

KNOX COLLEGE —The Siwashers are still in a stage where potential can't be determined according to Coach Hurley Knosher. Knox has defeated Lake Forest 97-81 and Beloit 85-83 while losing to Coe 86-68 in early games.

The Illinois school is led by 6-1 Doug Ziech who carries an 18.7 average for the three contests and 5-10 Dave Wotring who is hitting at 17.3. Other starters are 6-5 Dave Piper (11.3), 6-2 James Jepson (12.0), and 6-2 John Maguire (2.7).

GRINNELL COLLEGE — Grinnell has split in four early season games, defeating Cornell, Iowa 99-82 and Lawrence, Wis., 95-82 while losing to Augustana, Ill., 89-76, and Ripon, Wis., 71-68.

Iowa college is led by guard Jeff Frantz who is averaging 19.3 points per contest. This includes a 37 point effort against Lawrence. Other Grinnell starters are Jim Rhodes (13.8), Elliott Hibbs (12.5), Ted Risser (10.5), and Tom Hill (9.5). Top reserves include Clyde Smith (11.0) and Bob Watt (3.8).

CHICAGO UNIVERSITY — Chicago, which will furnish the first round opposition for Colorado College, has split in two games to date. The Maroons defeated Concordia, Neb., 67-44, and lost to Lake Forest, 62-52.

The Chicago team, which has been noted for its strong defense over the years is heavily loaded with youthful players. The starting lineup here is expected to include three freshmen and two sophomores. Leading scorers are freshman Bill Pearson (14.5), soph Kenneth Houganson (12.5), and soph Doug Peterson (12.5). The other starters are Martin Campbell (8.0), and Gary Day (6.5). Both are freshmen. Campbell at 6-5 and Day at 6-4 are the team's largest players.

Air Academy Gets Two Firsts In Gymnastics

TUCSON — Lt. Greg Weiss and Cadet Terry Higgins of the Air Force Academy took first places Monday night in specialist competition of the East-West All-Star gymnastics meet.

Lt. Weiss placed first in parallel bars. Weiss was a member of the 1964 Olympic team and coaches the freshman gymnasts at the Academy.

Cadet Higgins won top honors in high bar, defeating highly-touted John Quintana of Denver University.

The meet was held in conjunction with the Western Gymnastics Clinic.

Buffs Face Kansas State In Big Eight Semi-Finals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri's hungry Tigers face Colorado and favorites Kansas State and Kansas clash tonight before an expected Municipal Auditorium sell - out crowd in the semi - finals of the 19th annual pre - season Big Eight basketball tournament.

Missouri and Colorado advanced to the finals with first - round victories Monday night. Kansas State and Kansas won the familiar berths with victories on the opening night Saturday.

The Tigers fought off favored Oklahoma State 53-48 in the tourney's concluding and most exciting first - round contest. Colorado dumped a cold Nebraska club 70-52 in Monday night's first game.

Kansas State, which pounded Oklahoma 75-65, and Kansas, a 72-55 winner over Iowa State, meet in tonight's first game at 7:30. The Missouri - Colorado tussle is slated to start at 9:30.

Oklahoma and Iowa State play the opening game of the losers' bracket at 2 p. m. today. Oklahoma State meets Nebraska at 4 p. m.

The Kansas - Kansas State game pits two veterans of tournament semi - final action. On 14 of 18 previous tournaments, each club has appeared in the semi - finals.

Kansas State has talent as well as depth. Ron Paradis, a 6-foot-2 reserve guard came off the Wildcat bench to ignite the K - Staters to their opening - round victory over Oklahoma with 22 points.

Al Lopes dumped in 17 points to lead Kansas to its romp over Iowa State, but the Wildcats will have to stop Jayhawker pivot - man Walt Wesley.

Iowa State tied up the giant 6-foot-11 Wesley, who anaged only 12 points.

Kansas State ranked 18th nationally this week and Kansas 16th. The winner of battle among Kansans will be the favorite in Wednesady night's finals.

Colorado has the heighth advantage over Missouri, but this is nothing new to the Tigers.

Missouri coach Bob Vanatta called Monday night's victory over the Cowboys a great club effort. He also praised the shooting of his guards, Gary Garner, Charlie Rudd and Ron Coleman.

"The effort was about the same as we got against St. Louis (Missouri upset the Billikens two weeks ago 62-56). We had to do a bigger job against St. Louis because of its size," he said.

"I've never coached a bunch of boys with hearts these kids have," Vanatta said. "If I ask for 200 per cent, I get it."

"They tied up our big men (6-foot-5 George Flamank and 6-foot-4 Ned Monsees), but I don't think they figured we'd shoot as well from the outside."

Flamank and Monsees had averaged more than 30-points per contest through Missouri's initial seven games. Against the Cowboys Monday night, they combined for just 11.

Garner led the attack with 14 and Rudd and Coleman each scored 11. It was a different story from Cowboy coach Hank Iba, who was honored in pre - game ceremonies for his leadership of the U. S. Olympic team to victory at Tokyo.

"The kids were just too tight, they tried too hard. There was too much Olympic," he moaned.

Simpson Won't Make Prediction

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Coach Gord Simpson predictably was non-committal Monday night about his Canadian team's chances against Russia Wednesday in the International Hockey Tournament. Canada had just been upset by Czechoslovakia, 4-3.

"I just can't say how we'll do against the Russians after what happened tonight," Simpson said. "We could give them a fight."

The tournament is patterned after the late Walter A. Brown's idea for scoring — each team plays every other team twice, an innovation in international tournament hockey. Thus an early loser could rebound to beat a leading team.

But Simpson proved more vocal when asked to discuss Monday's off-and-on defeat.

"I was amazed by our third period comeback, but I also was disappointed with our play the first two periods."

The Canadians had displayed loose passing which resulted in the first Czech goal before rushing to two early third period goals and pressing the Czechoslovakians. Canada couldn't get the tie-maker, even with six forwards pounding at the goal the final two minutes.

"Czchoslovakia is a typical European team," Simpson continued. "Their passing and plays look flashy, but their attack is largely ineffective. I think we can beat them the next time out.

"If we had played Czechoslovakia Sunday night, and then again tonight, we'd be at least 1-1 now."

Simpson mentioned that his team was tired after a strong effort Sunday against the Russians, but said his team would be rested by Wednesday's game with the Soviets.

White Sox Sign Three Righthanders, Catcher

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox announced today the signing of catcher Ed Herrmann and three right-handed pitchers — Bruce Howard, Joel Gibson and Ken Murphy.

Howard came up from Indianapolis near the end of last season. He pitched three games, winning two and losing one. His earned run average was 0.82.

SHALL WE CHA-CHA — Miroslav Vlach (20) of Czechoslovakia and an unidentified Canadian player were not really improvising a new kind of dance during this action from the International Hockey Tournament game at the Broadmoor World Arena Monday night. The tangle came in a scramble for the puck. Also in on the action are Josef Capla (6) of Czechoslovakia and Marshall Johnston (16) of Canada. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Celtics Teach Lakers NBA Scoring Lesson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beating the Boston Celtics is tough enough under ordinary circumstances but when your two top scorers produce just 16 points between them, it's just about impossible.

The Los Angeles Lakers learned that Monday night as the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division-leading Celtics trounced them 133-112.

The Lakers, front-runners in the Western Division, got just 12 points from Jerry West and only four from Elgin Baylor and never threatened the Celtics, who had six men in double figures.

The victory kept the Celts six games in front of Cincinnati which rallied to top San Francisco 113-108. Los Angeles lost a half game of its margin over idle St. Louis and now leads the Hawks by three games.

Wilt Chamberlain had 42 points for the Warriors but the Royals scored six points in the last 59 seconds to pull it out. Oscar Robertson led Cincinnati with 35 points and Jack Twyman had 21.

In Monday night's only other game, Detroit downed New York 123-117 with player-coach Dave DeBusschere and Terry Dischinger scoring 23 points apiece. Bob Boozer had 29 for the Knicks.

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Adams State College dominated Chadron College of Neb., winning 88-57, and gaining the semifinals in the Top of the Nation tournament Monday night.

The Adams Indians hit 58 per cent of their shots to take percentage honors for the first day of the meet. The Indians lost All-American prospect Lonnie Parker in the first three minutes of play under the new foul rule.

Consistent shooting by every man on the Indian team piled up a 41-25 lead at halftime. Six of the Indians' 11 men scored in double figures with Willie Davis taking game high point position with 13.

Tuesday's tourney action will see Western New Mexico face Yankton College of S.D. in the consolation semifinals at 1:30 p.m. William Jewell College plays Chadron State at 3:30 in another consolation semifinal.

At 7 p.m. Central Oklahoma State meets Washburn University at Topeka, Kan., in the first championship semifinal game. Adams State faces St. Joseph Dons of Albuquerque, N.M. at 9.

The Dons hit 51 per cent Monday against William Jewell to score a decisive 99-50 victory. The Dons are defending tourney champions from last year and this year sport a 5-2 record, losing only to Arizona State and Oklahoma Baptist.

Adams State comes into the semifinals with a 5-0 record, and excellent depth on the bench.

Yanks Add Nothing

By far the most common question coming out of the current International Hockey Tournamen at the World Arena has been: Why hasn't the United States a team entered?

In simplest of terms, the U.S. would be humiliated and would add nothing to the excellent caliber of play going on this week. We couldn't field a team at this time that would keep in step with the pace set by the Russians, Canadians and Czechoslovakians.

When the idea of this holiday tournament was first formed, the thought was to limit the entries to only the upper echelon as determined from the last competition between countries. In this case, it was the Winter Olympic Games at Innsbruck, Austria, where the Russians were first, followed by Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Canada who tied with equal records but were placed in that order by goals scored.

As many know, it's a difficult thing trying to assemble a representative team from the United States for tournaments of this sort. For one thing, until just recently hockey had drawn little attention other than in certain areas of the land where the ice and snow of winter hang on long enough to develop young players without the benefit of numerous indoor rinks. Among our college players, many have been coming over the border from Canada where the sport is akin to baseball here in participation.

But even more important, it's a tough task for a player to give up a couple months of his time (at a minimum) without the weekly check to feed his family and self. Under at least our standards for "amateur" sports, bare expenses can be provided and anyone who has taken part in this type program will tell you it costs from your own pocket to make ends meet.

Besides that, even the money for these expenses must come from somewhere. And I know of no sugar daddy that's going to provide the whole sum. It's got to be voluntary, and most wouldn't want it any other way, but there are very few holding out the hand to help.

Hockey isn't exactly unique for this. The same thing troubles almost all our teams in international competition from track and field to kite flying. Probably the most fortunate along this line are the figure skaters, like those who gave exhibitions between games at the World Arena this week and who will be in the World Championships on the same ice in March. They happen to be backed by family financing, for the most part.

There seems to be no easy solution to this, although the best plan is one of an organization to collect funds from friends of the sport. That's how the U.S. Olympic hockey team made it to Innsbruck, as did the other Yank teams involved.

Getting talent is still another matter, especially keeping the players on the ice after they have finished their schoolboy days. Every year there are more and more teenagers taking up the sport, however, in this country. And with the increase of colleges offering hockey (and scholarships) this could be an incentive for more citizens to strap on the skates.

Canada is also having its own problems in international competition — and this hurts even more within a country that's the fatherland of the game. Getting beat by intruders in the land of the Maple Leaf is as humiliating as having some upstart team come into the U.S. and pin our ears back in baseball or basketball.

According to representatives from Canada, here with their National team for the current tourney, their fix centers around a system the professionals have worked into their nation. They also may have their financial difficulties, as do some other countries, but keeping their players eligible for amateur competition is the main squeeze.

On hand for Monday's local Quarterback Club were a few of these leaders of Canada's national pastime and they shed some light on the situation they face.

Especially outspoken was Father David Bauer, a special consultant to the Canadian team and recent organizer of the new plan to have an all-star type squad instead of the senior league champion as in the past.

As he explained it, there are hardly enough true "amateurs" in the country to compose a team — when using strict interpretation of rules and regulations.

"There's little doubt that we could put together a team from Canada that would be able to win most of the tournaments entered," Bauer said. "But we are trying to stick with principle and at the same time win back control of amateur hockey in our country for the amateurs."

Under the current setup north of the border, the half-dozen teams in the National Hockey League have what they term a "sponsorship" program in which each of the pro NHL clubs can sponsor two teams in each division of the experience ladder of Canada.

If any boy plays with one of these teams, however, he is obligated to the sponsoring NHL team and actually could be considered professional by these contracts by the letter of the amateur standards. The big catch is that there is hardly a choice for the young players as nearly all teams come under this category.

It also makes many of the young hockey players in Canada ineligible for college scholarships and curtails their chances for an education. It also hinders their studies even at the high school level for they play 70 or more games per season and that leaves little time for school — especially with extended road trips that take two weeks or more going across the vast land.

"We are asking that this 'sponsorship' program be dropped," Bauer said. "And if that doesn't work we may demand. We are working to give our boys a better opportunity and at the same time help our own cause."

Someone in the crowd asked: "Why don't you go to the source of the trouble?"

After a brief pause, he answered . . . .

"Well, that's something like the same trouble your country is having in Viet Nam."

Guerin Made New Coach Of Hawks

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ben Kerner, the St. Louis Hawks owner who changes coaches with the same ease that New Year's resolutions are broken, is ready to begin 1965 with a new one.

Kerner dropped the ax Monday on Harry Gallatin and named veteran Richie Guerin as player-coach of the National Basketball Association club.

Gallatin must have known his time was short, realizing he had been leading the Hawks for 2½ seasons. Kerner has had nine coaches in the 10 seasons the club has been in St. Louis, and none has lasted that long.

Kerner explains it this way:

"I'm at the point that if I don't finish first I'd just as soon finish fourth (last). There's no glory in second to me."

Under Gallatin the Hawks finished second in the Western Division the last two years and are the runner-up now, 3½ games behind Los Angeles.

"There's nothing that we asked Harry to do that he didn't do," Kerner said. "He's a tireless worker. I think Harry did a good job."

But he added:

"I felt that after three years our progress wasn't good enough with young players.

"This was something that didn't happen on the spur of the moment. I wasn't going to rehire him for next season, so I felt it would be in the best interests of both him and the Hawks to relieve him now."

Gallatin, who came to the Hawks after playing 10 years in the NBA and then coaching at Southern Illinois University, left on friendly terms and wished Guerin the best of luck.

CC Icers Seek Win Against BC Tonight

BOSTON — Trying to break through a string of eight games over two seasons without victory, Colorado College's hockey team makes the first stop of an Eastern tour over the holidays tonight here against the Eagles of Boston College.

CC's Tigers, 0-2 in Western Collegiate Hockey Association early action and 0-5 for this season, will be no more than an even choice to snap this skein that dates back to the final trio of games of last winter when they earned a tie against Michigan State.

Boston College comes into tonight's non-league game with a 7-1 record this season with its only loss being to Brown University, another possible opponent for the Tigers on this trip. Following tonight's game, on Friday CC will enter the two-night Brown Invitational Tournament as defending champion.

Boston College also owns a 6-1 victory this year against Providence, another entry in the Brown Invite. So tonight's game is tabbed as a fine test for the Bengals of Coach Bob Johnson who haven't seen action since early in December.

CC's last venture had the Colorado Springs based team drop a couple of thrillers to Duluth Branch of Minnesota University on other non-league games, 5-4 in overtime and 5-3. Those games were played Dec. 4-5 and since then only intra-squad scrimmage has been used to sharpen the Tigers' claws for this tour of the east.

BC features a young team with balanced scoring among its forwards, topped by a pair of juniors each with 15 points to their credit so far. Sophomore wing Dick Fuller is the Eagles' leader with eight goals, while junior winger John Cunniff is right behind with cover goals and eight assists. Also high on the BC scoring list are center Phil Dyer, center Pete Flaherty, and wings Jim Mullen and John Moylan, all juniors except for senior Flaherty.

The Eagles are coached by John (Snooks) Kelley, in his 30th year of hockey leadership and one of the most well known coaches in the country.

Colorado College has been playing all its games close this season, but so far has been unable to get the crucial goals when needed. Tonight, on the foreign ice here, they'll probably have to make every opportunity count if they expect to bust through that losing sreak.

Leading the way for the Bengals so far has been junior Glen Blumer and seniors Warren Fordyce and Bob Magie, but all are far off the scoring pace set by the Eagles. Blumer is the top goal-getter with four and Magie is next with three.

The Brown Tournament will run over Friday and Saturday nights at Providence, R. I., and then the Tigers will move back into Boston on Monday for a game with undefeated Boston University.

On the swing back to Colorado, CC will have a pair of games with Wisconsin University at Madison and then next will play at home Jan. 15-16 in WCHA contests with Michigan State.

Two St. Francis Coaches Vacate Positions

DENVER (UPI)— Two head athletic coaches at St. Francis High School were out of jobs today— Dick Jessup, the Warriors basketball mentor, and football and baseball coach Jim Burrow.

The announcement that the two positions were vacant was made Monday by the Rev. Raymond Jones, St. Francis athletic director. He named Tim Weiand, 24, to replace Jessup, and said he would name a replacement for Burrow at a later date.

Weiand is the second youngest coach to assume a head job in the Denver Parochial League.

Weiand, assistant cage coach of the Warriors for the past three years, is the second new coach for the club this season. Jessup whom he replaces, took over the reins for Wendell Strohauer who resigned last year.

Thunderbirds Set for Tilt With Laramie, Wednesday

Wasson's thrice-beaten Thunderbirds take one last shot at evening their non-conference record Wednesday afternoon when the local club hosts Laramie, Wyo. in a rare holiday attraction at the Palmer Gymnasium. Game time is 3 p.m. with the Jayvees of the two schools meeting at 1:15.

The contest will complete a two game stopoff for the highly-regarded Laramie club. The Wyoming quintet was to meet Palmer's Terrors earlier this afternoon.

Although an accurate comparison between the teams is next to impossible due to possible differences in the overall caliber of competition within the two states, there can be little doubt that Laramie will be bringing a strong club to Colorado Springs. The school has enjoyed a flood of talented athletes in the past several years and last winter's basketball squad captured the state championship.

Going into action last weekend, the Laramie club had a 5-0 record and was ranked number one in Wyoming prep circles again this year. The team includes several all-sport stars, including a number of all-staters from the school's state football champions this past fall.

Wasson approaches this formidable task with a 2-3 record, a lengthy layoff just behind, and one of its top reserves sidelined with a severe ankle sprain. Craig Gillette, a starter in the first couple of games, has his foot in a cast following an injury last week that will keep him out of action until at least mid-January.

Coach Dick Westbay called Gillette's loss a serious one. "He is one of our better backboard men," the Wasson coach said, "and we feel that he was just starting to really come along."

The Thunderbirds will also face Laramie with the handicap of having seen no game action for 11 days. Wasson's last start was a 74-69 overtime defeat at Lakewood that certainly left a bitter taste for the local players over the holiday season. The T-Birds had been nine points ahead early in the fourth quarter but were swamped at the free throw line in the late minutes and eventually forced into the overtime by a tipin shot at the buzzer.

That setback came on the heels of a record-setting performance by the Thunderbirds the previous evening. Against South Denver Wasson poured in 91 points, a school mark, in burying the Rebels. Earlier they had defeated Cherry Creek and dropped decisions to Denver Lincoln and West Denver.

Westbay will probably go with the same starting lineup Wednesday that opened the Lakewood game. That includes All-City Jim Smith at one guard, along with junior Rick Pettigrew. Randy Stanley, another junior, who has come on to take over the team scoring lead is expected to open at forward along with Mike Martin. Veteran Charlie Steel, probably the squad's top all- around player, will open at center.

Following Wednesday's game the Birds will draw a nine game break before opening the South Central League season at home against Pueblo Centennial Jan. 8.

ROYAL WELCOME—Darrell Royal, athletic director and head football coach of the University of Texas, gets some "royal" treatment from Orange Bowl Queen Linda Egland as he arrived in Miami, Fla. Coach Royal and the Texas team arrived at the Orange Bowl site Monday for their game Jan. 1 with Alabama.

Russell, Stallworth Lead Top Teams to Cage Wins

By DICK COUCH
Asciated Press Sports Writer

Sensation performances by Michigan whiz Cazzie Russell and Wichita All-America Dave Stallworth have kept the holiday ball rolling for the nation's top two college basketball powers.

Russell rattled Madison Square Garden boards for 36 points, leading the No. 1 ranked Wolverines over stubborn Manhattan 90-77 in a first-round game of the ECAC Holiday Festival at New York Monday night.

Stallworth, meanwhile, scored 20 of his 29 points in a second-half rally that shot No. 2 Wichita past previously-unbeaten Villanova 86-74 and into the finals of the Quaker City Tournament at Philadelphia.

Nine of the top ten teams in the Associated Press ratings went to the post in tournaments that blanketed the country. The only losers were Illinois and St. Louis, beaten by other members of the select group.

St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, which crashed the top ten for the first time on this week's ballot, outlasted the sixth-ranked Illini 75-71 — after blowing a 16-point lead — and gained the Quaker City finals opposite Wichita. The unbeaten, 10th ranked Hawks have won nine starts — including victories over then nationally-ranked Davidson and St. John's, N.Y.

St. Louis, No. 9, fell 98-68 before a furious second-half rush by seventh-ranked Indiana in the opening round of the Memphis State Classic. The Hoosiers, 8-0, meet the host team, 95-92 overtime victor over Southern Methodist, for the title tonight.

Minnesota and San Francisco, only other unbeaten clubs among the national leaders, advanced in West Coast tourneys but unheralded Washington threw a scare at the third-ranked Gophers before bowing 77-76 in the first round of the Los Angeles Classic. The fifth-ranked Dons matched Minnesotas 7-0 record by smothering Pepperdine 103-64 in a WCAC tournament contest.

Fourth-ranked UCLA, unbeaten Utah and Iowa joined Minnesota in the Los Angeles semifinals. The Bruins ran their winning string to seven after an opening loss to Illinois by whipping Arizona 99-79. Utah, 9-0, nipped Michigan State 71-65 and Iowa defeated Southern California 71-65.

Duke's no. 8 Blue Devils, idle Monday, seek their sixth victory in seven starts at Ohio State Wednesday night.

Russell, Michigan's 6-foot-6 backcourt ace, scored 22 first-half points, hitting on 10 of 15 shots from the floor, to pace the Wolveriner to a 45-39 halftime margin. The Big Teng favorites wrapped up their seventh victory in eight decisions with a 17-2 burst midway in the second half, Russell contributing seven more points.

Cazzie finished with a 15-for-26 night from the field, six of seven free throws, 13 rebounds and five assists.

Bill Bradley, Princeton's All-America and Olympic star, matched Russell's 36 points as the Tigers outran Syracuse 79-69 in another ECAC first-rounder. Princeton meets Michigan and once-beaten Cincinnati plays St. John's in Wednesday's semifinals. The Bearcats ripped Temple 83-56 and the Redmen edged LaSalle 78-71 Monday.

Wichita, beaten only by Michigan in eight games, overtook Villanova on consecutive three-point plays by Stallworth and Kelly Pete with 13½ minutes to play and pulled away in the final 10 minutes. Dave Leach netted 21 points and Pete 16 for the Wheatshockers. Jim Washington scored 23 of Villanova, now 8-1.

Cliff Anderson and Tom Duff scored consecutive baskets in the closing minutes, giving St. Joseph's a 71-69 lead, after the Illini had stormed back into contention with spurts of eight and 10 straight points.

Anderson led the Hawks' balanced attack with 17 points, three less than Illinois' 6-8 Skip Thoren.

Indiana trailed St. Louis by six points early in the second half before the Van Arsdale twins — Dick and Tom — combined for nine straight points that set off the Hoosier fireworks. Jon McGlocklin paced Indiana with 29 points and Dick Van Arsdale added 18.

Memphis State's John Hillman scored 37 points in the nightcap, hitting the tying shot with seconds remaining in regulation time and firing two quick baskets in overtime that sent the Tigers in front to stay.

Minnesota went 10 minutes and 44 seconds of the second half without a field goal, squandering a 17-point bulge, before Archie Clark and Lou Hudson shot the Gophers over the top.

Michigan Holds AP Poll Lead

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Today's seminar on how to stay on top of The Associated Press' weekly basketball poll will be taught by Michigan's Wolverines, who seem to have mastered the subject.

The Wolverines, ranked No. 1 for the second straight week gave Manhattan a basketball lesson in the opening round of the Eastern College Athletic Conference's Holiday Festival at New York's Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Cazzie Russell's 36 points overcame some early Garden jitters suffered by Michigan and carried the Wolverines to a 90-77 victory.

Wichita, still second but closing the gap, kept pace with an 86-74 triumph over previously unbeaten Villanova in the Quaker City Tournament. Dave Stallworth scored 29 to lead the Shockers.

Michigan polled 23 first place votes and 350 points in the voting by 38 sports writers and broadcasters. Wichita, which was 70 points back a week ago, collected 322 points in the tight race for the top spot.

Third-ranked Minnesota had a scare Monday night but held on for a 77-76 victory over Washington in the Los Angeles Classic. In the same tournament, fourth-ranked UCLA ripped Arizona 99-79.

San Francisco, completing the top five, routed Pepperdine 103-64 in the Western College Athletic Conference tourney at San Jose, Calif.

Illinois, up to No. 6 lost to 10th-ranked St. Joseph's 75-71. The Hawks grabbed the final in the rankings, ousting Davidson.

Holiday Break

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazete Telegraph Sports Writer

The Yuletide season was responsible for a scoring lull at the 11 Colorado Springs bowling establishments last week as most of the leagues took a holiday.

However, there were a few top scores posting including Jim Pee's 686 scratch series at Circlea Lanes. Leonard Cheslock fired a 279 single tally to top the high individual scratch game recorded last week at Bowl-Mor Lanes.

For the gals, Marie Reinke hit for a 226 game at Ute Lanes to outpace the other lady keglers at Ute Lanes. Among the junior bowlers, David De Giacoma's 235 tilt was tops followed by Steve Underdahl with a 600 series paced by a 233 single high game and Danny Brunson's 631 set and 223 high game.

OTHER SCORES: Pete Kay 683 and Lew Vance 651 (Circle Lanes); Earl Jones 681 (Ute Lanes); and Jim Grether 630, Vilma Brubaker 612 and Mo Downing 207 (Trail Bowl).

FUTURE STAR — Ofttimes, the press and sports fans judge an athlete's ability by his scoring. This also applies in bowling and a kegler is rated strictly by his average.

Among the younger ranks of bowlers in Colorado Springs, there are many junior bowlers with high potential, although he or she might not have credits to high individual scores or averages.

Such is the case of Janet Rector, an eighth grade student at Washington Irving Junior High. Miss Rector has been active in the bowling sport for the last five years. She doesn't have any exceptional high scores to her credit but Janet's 198 scratch game and 539 scratch series is better than average for the junior girl bowlers in the prep division.

Janet, however, has claimed some 24 YBA awards including the Colorado State Mixed Doubles Champion, City Scratch All - Events Champion, City Christmas Scratch Singles champion, City Christmas Mixed Doubles Champion and seven league high average awards. And she accomplished this last bowling season.

JUNIOR TOURNAMENT — One of three junior bowlers competing in the local BPA bowling established rolloff will qualify for the State Junior Holiday Doubles Tournament, which will be held at Classic Bowl on Jan. 9.

The local qualifiers will compete in the state tourney and their scores will be forwarded to Denver. From there the top state bowlers' scores will be forwarded for the national finals.

MEN'S TOURNEY — The Trinidad Lanes team won the twice monthly Southern Colorado BPA Men's Traveling Tournament a week ago last Sunday at Classic Bowl in Colorado Springs. The winning team fired a 2973 series.

Belmont Lanes No. 1 from Pueblo finished second with 2932, followed by Trail Bowl of Manitou Springs via a 2930 set. Ernie Brothers of Pueblo posted the highest individual game with a 247 effort.

The next tournament is set for Sunday at Freemont Lanes in Florence.

ABC BOWLING NOTES — When the Crossman Chevrolet team of Minneapolis competes in the 1965 ABC Tournament in St. Paul on March 29, the five bowlers in the Booster division lineup will total 298 years of bowling experience. Leadoff bowler Bob Bowell, 79, has been bowling 61 years; Cyrus Anderson, 80, has 64 years of experience in the tenpin sport; Fred Benson, 74, has 55 years experience; and Fred Jewell, 71, is a 57 year veteran while captain Jule Gustafson, 73, has been bowling 61 years.

Sheldron Hippo, a California professional bowler, recently rolled 13 straight strikes in a game but scored only 299.

Hippo, after hitting his ninth straight strike, became excited and rolled two more on the same lane. When told of his error, Sheldon immediately moved to the proper lane, hit two more strikes but then knocked down only nine pins on the last toss. It happened in a PBA tournament at Oxnard, Calif.

Sorority Observes Birthday

Members of Rho Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma celebrated their twenty-fourth birthday with a Christmas party which was held recently at the home of Mrs. Lois Manuel.

Irmgard Bechtle entertained the group with violin selections, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Crandall. Irmgard is an exchange student from Germany. She sang two of the favorite German carols and also told about many of the German Christmas customs and how she happened to become an exchange student.

The president, Mrs. Opal Beardslee, had charge of the birthday ceremony. There was a gift exchange and secret pals were revealed.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Plain recipe books are still around this Christmas for cooks more interested in instruction than reading material.

Outstanding among new publications in that category is Peggy Harvey's "The Horn of Plenty" (Atlantic-Little, Brown). It is a recipe anthology of the author's personal favorites from 50 cookbooks, some now out of print, plus dozens of other recipes from her own and friends' files.

Unusual dishes include Panamanian arroz con pollo—chicken with rice and fruit; Cajun fried chicken, pre - soaked in milk, eggs and red pepper sauce; a double boiler souffle that does not have to be served immediately; and an adaptation of an incredibly rich chocolate pastry cake for which a New York restaurant is famous.

"Adventures in Food" (Lane) gives the remainder of the country a chance to try recipes that appeared in Sunset Magazine, a travel-food publication whose circulation is confined to a few western states. The recipes range from typically Californian dishes such as avocado omelet to foreign foods, including Arab meat balls with pine nut sauce and Lebanese artichoke and lamb stew.

---

New ideas that abound in Marian Tracy's "200 Main Course Dishes" (Scribners) include almon custard with warm cucumber sauce, cabbage rolls in lemon sauce, baked chicken in oatmeal - black walnut breading, and smoky pea souffle containing dry soup mixe and sour cream.

---

"The Art of Cooking With Spirits" by Elise Landauer Meyer (Doubleday) uses alcoholic beverages as ingredients, often in novel ways, such as dry vermouth in suffed baked potatoes.

---

"The Gourmet Cooking School Cookbook" by Dione Lucas with Darlene Geis (Bernard Geis Assoc.) contains good recipes poorly presented. The marketing lists only rarely specify quantities needed—that information must be located in cooking directions, which often cover two pages for a single recipe.

---

"The Cookbook of the United Nations" (UN Association of the United States of America) contains 250 recipes from 112 countries, all described as authentic but adapted to U.S. kitchens. Just how thoroughly adapted is questionable in the case of some African and Asian recipes that call for quantities of pepper staggeringly large by U.S. standards—such as 1½ teaspoons of crushed red pepper for a main dish to serve 6.

---

We asked Deborah Williams, 15, Hartsdale, N.Y., to review "The Seventeen Cookbook" (MacMillan) and after reading and trying some recipes. Her report:

"In general, I like it. But it calls for too many prepared ingredients. You can't just go out to the kitchen on Sunday night and whip up something because you may not have the ingredients.

"I wish it had more cookie recipes with oatmeal and nuts. Too many cookie recipes are for chocolate or party cookies with frosting and decorations."

Deborah also approved of the utensil and grocery shopping guides, and the general rules for salads and main dishes, all "very useful for someone who's learning to cook."

The same book, in the opinion of Deborah's mother: "Too many fancy recipes that involve too much work."

Which may just go to prove that what's work for mother is play for daughter, who is not a full-time cook.

Family Pool Hall Money In Pocket

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Family billiards has become such a big thing in recent years that the world's largest bank is advising small business entrepreneurs on how to establish a "family pool hall."

Says Bank of America in its regular small business advisory bulletin:

"The pool hall, a traditional masculine haunt, has changed so radically in the past three years that in the new establishments only the rules of the game and its fascination remain the same."

Even the name is changing —with "pocket billiards" taking over from "pool."

There are about 11,000 billiard parlors in the United States. More are being built all the time, and they represent a potential money-making business for any suburb or city, according to Bank of America.

Some proprietors have been able to pay off their investment in only five weeks. This investment includes mainly the tables, which sell for $1,500 to $2,000 each.

Billiards rooms may succeed in almost any location, the advisory says. "Some proprietors feel that as much as 80 per cent of their business comes from teen-agers, others say the game is becoming popular with 30-40-year-old married couples."

Industry sources say a neighborhood can support a billiard hall on the basis of one table for every 1,000 or 2,000 persons in the area. The bank suggests that good locations are near a high school or suburban shopping center.

If billiards for the whole family has any problems, says Bank of America, it is in its "image."

Those who work on "image" are trying to destroy the "pool hall" reputation. They predict a slow but steady change—and continuing growth for neighborhood "pocket billiards."

Fashionette

United Press International

Smooth sailing costumes to cruise in include pale, two-tone, flowered cotton jacquards. For dressier occasions on deck, a good idea is a sleeveless camisole, an A-skirt and a tailored jacket with set - in sleeves, notched collar and belted back.

Ruffles have long been on the upswing. Now they are definitely back in their frilly best. Watch them on everything from bathing suits to evening gowns. They help soften the tailored look, for example, on the V-neck of a sleeveless white cotton organdy shell.

---

Toe wiggling is no problem in the small child's world. The fashion trend for the young miss and teenager is for full toes, straps and pumps, and plenty of bows and buckles.

---

Cashmere, long on the decline, is making something of a comeback in both single and dyed - to - match ensembles. There's been no real change in cashmere but it's still a good high-fashion accessory second, in sales, to the test-tube fiber replacements of late.

Former Springs Teacher Honored in California

Altha B. Crowley, a native of Colorado Springs, was the subject of a feature article recently in a Sacramento, Calif. newspaper.

Miss Crowley has been a church school teacher for 60 years, 48 of them in the Sacramento area. A program was given in her honor following the morning service at the Fremont Presbyterian Church early this month. She is the sister of Mrs. Robert B. McAulay, whose husband is the Rev. McAulay, pastor of the church.

Miss Crowley was graduated from Colorado College in 1912 and taught in the Colorado Springs schools until 1915. She taught at Grants Pass for one year before moving to Sacramento where she taught in several schools before retiring in 1954. During those years she conducted church school classes. She has also done post graduate work at the University of California at Berkeley.

Although she has been retired for ten years, she still does tutoring along with her church school work. Miss Crowley is a cousin of Mrs. Laura Reid and Mr. Ed Richardson of Colorado Springs.

Some Light on Dark Bones

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No bones about it. Chickens with dark bones are fit to eat, say U.S. Department of Agriculture poultry specialists.

Dark bones, you see, are a sign of a young bird. The reason you are seeing more of them lately is because producers are marketing broiler-fryer chickens, fryer-roaster turkeys and ducklings at an earlier age.

---

Fruity

Fruited pork chops with rice take about an hour to prepare. Brown 4 chops weighing a total of about 1 pound in a skillet. Pour off fat. Add 1 (10½-ounce) can of giblet gravy, liquid from an 8½-ounce can of apricot halves, 1 teaspoon of lemon juice, ½ cup of sliced onion, 1 large clove of garlic, minced, and ½ teaspoon of prepared mustard. Cook, covered, over low heat 45 minutes or until tender. Stir occasionally. Add drained apricot halves for last five minutes of cooking time. Serve with rice. Serves 4.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Cause and Effect!

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl of 15. I love my parents but I hate my grandmother on my father's side, and I mean I really HATE her. She has lived with us ever since my grandfather died. This woman gets on my nerves so much that I could just scream. I try to ignore her as much as possible, but her slightest faults disturb the living daylights out of me. We are not on speaking terms right now, but it's best this way because I despise the sound of her voice. I don't feel like being friends with her because that would be worse, believe me. What should I do? —BUBBY TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: You "hate" to intensly for a 15-you are taking out all your frustrations and hostilities on the one who is least able to fight back. Tone down your bitterness, young lady, and get this out of your system by having a frank discussion with your parents.

DEAR ABBY: Our baby was born last March. My mother, who lives in another state, wrote and asked me if the baby has been baptized and I replied no. Then she suggested that I make arrangements to have the baby baptized in the city where she lives, which is my home town. The reason I'm writing you is because I'm sure the priest who will baptize our baby will want to have the birth certificate, which may put me in an embarrassing spot. You see, I told my mother the baby was born in June because I didn't want her to know that I was pregnant when I got married, and I'd rather she didn't find out the truth. Please tell me where I can get a birth certificate stating the baby was born in June. —ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Don't risk embarrassment by asking anyone to falsify a legal document. If you have the baby baptized in your home town, hope your mother doesn't notice the date on the birth certificate.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is a beauty operator and when she comes home from work she is usually dog tired. We have some relatives who make a practice of telephoning me during the day to ask if Susan is "doing anything" special that evening, which means, "If we come over will Susan give us a free hair-do?"

I never know how to handle this. If I say that Susan has no special plans that I know of, over they come and poor Susan is stuck. She's such a sweet-big-hearted girl, she would never refuse to do their hair no matter how exhausted she was. I've seen her stand on her feet until midnight giving those cheap cousins free permanents when they could easily afford to go to her shop and pay like everybody else. If I lie and say that Susan has plans for the evening when I know she hasn't, I have to go to confession. Can you help me? —SUSAN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Why lie? Simply tell those who inquire to call Susan after work. Then tell Susan that unless she ENJOYS giving free hair-dos after hours she had better gather the gumption to say no. The meek sometimes inherit varicose veins.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

When removing all those decorations and Christmas balls from your tree . . . we can save you plenty of time:

We laid newspapers under the tree to catch all the small twigs, then we used garden snippers (just as if we were trimming roses) and cut the pine branch near the ornament. We just slid the ornaments off the twig instead of removing each wire in the decoration and having to put it back.

My husband came up with this idea last year and we took off about 60 ornaments in 10 minutes. —Richmond

Dear Folks:

May I tell you the best way we have found for disposing of a Christmas tree?

We lay a sheet (don't use a clean one!) on the floor, unplug the lights, remove and pack away all of the ornaments.

Then we gently lay the tree on its side on the sheet before removing the strings of lights. (If you take out the bulbs before you remove the light cords there is less chance of broken bulbs).

The dried needles of the tree will fall onto the sheet and you will avoid an extra, unnecessary clean-up job. Also, it is easy to spy any small ornaments you might have missed.

After the tree is competely bare, draw the sheet up around the sides of the tree (sling-fashion) and two people holding two corners of the sheet) can carry a large tree outside for disposal without leaving a path of needles through the house.—Heloise

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

Visited my daughter and family. All locks in house changed to "NOT" lock because of small fry.

No privacy with bathroom. Daughter made sign to hang on knob so small fry would know.

Son-in-law saw sign. Inquired reason. Spent afternoon connecting lock. O.K. now . . . I used bathroom in confidence, then when I wanted to leave the room, had to call for HELP.

He had locked me in (got lock backwards) and the door could only be opened from hallway. . . —Reader

Dear Heloise:

I loved your idea of cutting up old cotton skirts for dish towels, and happened to remember that I had a box of old cotton curtains stored away.

Since the sides of the curtains were hemmed, I just cut across the width of the material with my pinking scissors and have towels just the proper length . . . already hemmed at top and bottom.

Cafe curtains would work, too. Just cut right up the center and have two tea towels from each curtain.

Some of the curtains were rather faded, and I would never hang them again, but still they were just too good to throw away.

I love the bright towels in my kitchen. Thanks for giving my brain a little nudge! —Illene

Dear Heloise:

If you use tape of any kind . . . Take a paper clip and put it on the end of the tape when you have finished using what you need.

The clip does not stick like a piece of paper which also has to be cut off, thus wasting a bit of tape. The clip will also prevent the tape from sticking to itself. —Agnes Rausch

Dear Heloise:

When unwrapping shirts from the laundry, my husband places the plastic bags in an empty facial tissue box on the top shelf in his closet.

This way our little son can't possibly get at the plastic (he could if it were thrown in the wastebasket), and when I need them I know right where they are. —Mrs. S. R. Goodman

Radar to Dry On Future Wave

ATLANTA (UPI) — Radar may be used in the near future to dry clothes.

Don Lyons, a young mechanical engineering student at Georgia Tech, is currently experimenting with microwaves to discover exactly how they withdraw moisture.

Engineers already know cotton and synthetic materials dry much faster when exposed to microwaves of radio wavelength than when dried by ordinary household radiant energy.

Lyons is working to determine if still shorter wave-lengths of radar will do an even better job as "ovens" can be built and used by textile manufacturers to dry cakes of yarn in minutes instead of hours.

This is important in the textile industry because yarn must usually be wet, bleached, dyed and dried three to four times.

Microwaves of radio frequency have been used by textile manufacturers drying synthetic materials like rayon for a few years now — at a cost roughly three times that of radiant heat.

The system is not as efficient as it should be, but it does cut drying time from 130 hours to 20 minutes. Radiant heat drying of synthetics is extremely slow because temperatures must be kept very low or the material will scorch.

Lyons believes that radar wave ovens would dry a cake of yarn in only 10 minutes, and at low costs.

Formulas Figure in Big Baby Business

CHICAGO (UPI) — Early this morning in the United States, more than four million babies woke up crying to be fed. Approximately one-third of them, the ones four - months - old or younger, depended on some infant formula product for their main source of nourishment.

Here's how the job was done, according to a survey by Mead Johnson Laboratories:

—Ten per cent of American mothers breast fed their babies, although many mothers also gave the infants supplemental formula feedings.

—Approximately 21 per cent of the babies got evaporated milk with carbohydrate modifiers added.

—Forty-seven per cent were fed with prepared infant formulas. Five years ago this figure was 24 per cent.

Although the U.S. birth rate has been in a temporary decline during the past 26 months, births for 1975 are estimated at 5.2 million, compared to 4.3 million in 1960.

About three babies have been born since you started reading this article, since a new birth is recorded in the U.S. every 7½ seconds.

How to banish that "Old Chair"... (without a battle)

A man has a way of becoming attached to his easy chair . . . and we don't blame him. After all these years its as comfortable as an old shoe (but that's the trouble, it often looks like an old shoe).

How to banish that old chair is a problem that most wives encounter at one point or another. There are several possible solutions.

1. Throw it away (this is not battle-proof method)
2. Buy a puppy and let him chew off the legs.
3. Bring your husband on a trip through our two stores. Among the more than 800 chairs is an exceedingly wide array of handsome easy chairs in every style and at any price. We'll help him find one that's twice as comfortable as the old one and at least 10 times better looking.

Science Builds New Weapons Against Pests

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — Science is building an arsenal of new, bizarre and potentially safe weapons against insects and weeds — in a range from invisible light to lethal sound waves.

Some already are paying off in the fight against pests which cost the United States more than $2 billion a year in lost crops, to say nothing of livestock mortality and disease.

Dr. Nyle C. Brady of the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported on the new weapons during a discussion of new approaches to pest control at an international science meeting here today.

The new weapons, he said, are in the experimental stage. But he said all of them show promise of helping intensify the war against pests — and perhaps overcoming the drawbacks posed by conventional chemical pesticides, including health hazards to men and animals.

As for the conventional chemical pesticides — which have been a subject for controversy as a result of the late Rachel Carson's book "The Silent Spring" — Brady said in his report to the 131st meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"Chemical pesticides are still essential to American agriculture and will be for some time. Today, however, the emphasis is on non-chemical approaches.

"In using chemicals, our greatest difficulties are concerned with the fact that some of them tend to persist in the environment. . . and build up in the bodies of biological organisms used for food."

Discussing some of the new non-chemical weapons, Brady said certain kinds of light — including ultraviolet or "invisible light" — show promise of controlling various insects "particularly those that fly long distances, such as some of the tobacco, cotton, and cabbage pests."

The lights, he indicated, attract insects to traps in some as yet unexplained way.

"We trapped tobacco hornworms in an area of 113 square miles in North Carolina for three years in succession, using near-ultraviolet light," he said. He added that the method reduced the hornworm population 90 per cent.

"We have been able to utilize other forms of light as well as sound and radio waves to control insects on an experimental basis," Brady said.

He also reported that a technique for sterilizing male insects with atomic radiation or chemicals — so as to prevent reproduction — is being used successfully against the screwworm fly, a livestock scourge, in Texas and New Mexico. It is also being used against the Mexican fruit fly at the California-Mexico border.

Nation's Top Tax Collector Named by LBJ

By JOE F. KANE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheldon S. Cohen, who says he wants Americans to feel "the Internal Revenue Service is not an agency to fear — it makes the government run," has been selected by President Johnson to be the nation's top tax collector.

Cohen, 37, a native of Washington, is chief counsel of the IRS — a post to which he was named by Johnson a year ago Wednesday. His nomination as IRS commissioner was announced by the President Monday night.

The nomination requires Senate confirmation.

Cohen expressed delight over his selection and said he had no specific plans at this time for IRS innovations. He said former Commissioner Mortimer Caplin had done "a remarkable job of bringing the mission of IRS home to the public" and that he would work for close cooperation between the service and the public.

Cohen will succeed Bertrand Harding as head of the IRS. Harding was named acting commissioner to succeed Caplin last July 10 when Caplin resigned to re-enter law practice.

Cohen was born in the capital on June 28, 1927, and served in the Navy in 1945 and 1946. He was graduated from George Washington University in 1952. He completed his law course at George Washington in two years, finishing first in his class in 1952. A year later, he qualified as a certified public accountant. He has been an associate professorial lecturer at George Washington since 1958.

In 1960 he joined the Washington law firm of Arnold, Fortas and Porter.

He married Faye Fram of Baltimore 13 years ago. They now live in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., and have four children, Melinda Ann, 8, Laura Eve, 5, Jonathan Adam, 3, and Sharon Ruvena, 10 months.

When Cohen became chief counsel a year ago, his salary was $19,000. This was increased to $26,000 under the government salary bill passed last August. As commissioner, he'll get $28,500.

Cohen says he devotes considerable time to "two pet charities" — the Jewish Social Service Agency and the Jewish Community Center. He serves as an officer of both District of Columbia organizations.

How about hobbies?

"I used to like to play golf," he told a reporter. "But I've only been able to play three times since I went to work for the government — and those three times were during vacation."

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 2 ♡ | Pass |
| 4 ♡ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

A hasty and perhaps thoughtless play at the opening gun provided South — the declarer at four hearts — with ample cause to repent at his leisure.

West opened the jack of spades which was covered in turn by the queen, king, and ace. Declarer led a diamond to North's ace in order to try the heart fineese, which lost to West's king.

There was a temptation to cash the ten of spades and then make a natural exit in the hope that he could subsequently score tricks with both the king and queen of clubs. A moment's reflection, however, convinced West that a passive course could not succeed even if South did have length in clubs. Declarer wouldn't have opened the diamond suit unless he had the king. It therefore becomes routine for him to strip out the spades and diamonds before making a club play. When West goes in with the queen of that suit, he will be forced to surrender a trick on the return.

West decided to risk a possible overtrick in an effort to get East in to make a play for him. At trick three he returned the three of spades. East covered dummy's seven with the 9 and was somewhat surprised when he held the trick—not too surprised, however, to come back with a club. South played the seven and West won with the queen. The latter now exited with a trump and waited to score the setting trick later with the king of clubs.

Declarer was admittedly the victim of unfavorable distribution as well as some sparkling defense. He could have wrapped up the deal, however, by permitting West to hold the first trick with the jack of spades. The latter will presumably continue the suit; however, East never gets in. After trumps are drawn, South cashes three diamonds and then leads the jack of clubs. West is in with the queen and whatever he returns presents declarer with his 10th trick.

An examination of the combined holdings reveals that the contract is safe against any distribution as long as East is kept out of the lead. Declarer should have planned his campaign accordingly.

QUESTION: What is your opinion on Christians belonging to fraternities and sororities? —P. L.

ANSWER: If you are asking if it is necessary to belong to a fraternity or sorority to be a Christian, I would say, "No." Many students cannot afford the luxury of living at a "frat house," but as to the problem of whether it is right or wrong, that would depend on the convictions of the individual, and what fraternity or sority he or she was pledged to. Most campusorganizations are pledged to high ideals. But we also know that some have participated in the wrong things.

The main purpose of college is to help develop character and get an academic education. These formative years should not be over-balanced with social activities, though they are important. Because too many American students have thought of college as a lark, we have fallen behind Europeans in some phases of education. The world of tomorrow calls for serious, forthright leadership. I believe that Christians should make themselves felt in every legitimate, worthwhile position in life, and I would not rule out a fraternity house as one of them—all other things being equal.

If you belong to a fraternity or sorority, then live as a Christian should.

LBJ's Health Is Excellent, Doctor Says

By KARL R. BAUMAN

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) —The doctor who keeps daily watch over President Johnson predicts he will withstand the stresses and strains of the White House in outstanding fashion.

Rear Adm. George G. Burkley, personal physician to the President, describes Johnson's health as excellent.

But Burkley, who keeps in touch with the President's health through daily observation and a general check every 7 to 10 days, would like Johnson to take off a little weight.

He reports Johnson weighs 205 to 210 pounds. Burkley wishes it were nearer 200.

The White House released for publication Monday questions submitted by newsmen, along with Burkley's replies. Press secretary George E. Reedy said questions had been entered by several newsmen and it was decided to compile the questions and answers so all would have an even break.

A couple of the questions and answers:

Q. In the light of the heart attack in 1955, what is the state of the President's heart today:

A. No evidence of residual of the 1955 heart attack. All findings indicate normal function and reserve.

Q. The President also had a kidney stone removed in 1955, and there have been reports doctors recommended he drink less milk after a slight recurrence of kidney trouble in 1963. What are the facts?

A. There has been no kidney trouble since mid-1963. Calcium intake is frequently reduced when stone formation has occurred in the past.

Johnson recently was examined by a heart specialist, Dr. John Willis Hurst of Atlanta, and Dr. James Cain of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn. In subsequent interviews with Associated Press science writer Frank Carey, they gave Johnson a good bill of health. Both felt his weight should be about 190.

Burkley said Johnson likes bourbon and water before dinner, hasn't smoked since his heart attack, gets seven or eight hours sleep, usually awakens between 7 and 8 a.m.

Furthermore, Burkley reported, Johnson sleeps well, is on no special diet, and takes daily, supervised exercises augmented by walking and sometimes by swimming.

When plagued by hoarseness during the campaign, the President took cough drops. When his hand got sore from handshaking, it was massaged, its abrasions cleansed, and plastic bandage strips applied.

Burkley was asked to what he attributes Johnson's ability "to carry on a rigorous routine in consideration of his age and history of a heart attack."

The White House doctor replied: "Complete recovery and excellent general physical fitness and his ability to relax on short notice."

The last of the 35 questions: "What is your judgment as to how the President will withstand the strains and stresses of four more years in the White House?"

CAIRO — The Ministry of Health of The United Arab Republic has issued a booklet setting down specifications for drugs.

LOGICAL ANSWER

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Mrs. Rose Karan, piano teacher, had to be away from home a couple hours, and her daughter, Annette, 6 years old, took care of the telephone calls.

When Mrs. Karan returned home, Annette informed her that three people had called and handed her the telephone pad containing a series of meaningless scribbles. Annette remembered the first two calls, but stared hopelessly at the third note.

"Did someone cancel an appointment?" asked the mother, "Look hard. What did you write there?"

"You know very well, mother," said Annette, "that I don't know how to read."

Writer Takes Fling at Acting in 'Glory Guys'

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"How about doing a part in the movie?" director Arnold Laven asked me, "Just to see what it's like."

O.K. You're only young once. So there I was, in the crisp Mexican morning, while a battalion of pleasant young Mexicans brought me an 19th century U.S. cavalry uniform as my costume and fixed on sideburns and a mustache for my part in "The Glory Guys."

Laven told me I was going to be the batman of Andrew Duggan, playing Gen. McCabe in this cavalry-and-Indian war story. And when he stood up, I was to help him on with his coat.

George Ross, the technical advisor, made me take off my mustache, and exchange the sergeants uniform I had been given for a private's. He said that only privates were batmen, and they couldn't wear mustaches.

Thirty-seven times that day, I helped Andy Duggan on with his coat. There were long shots, close shots, reverse shots and cover shots. And dozens of retakes on each one. Happily, none of the retakes could be laid at my doorstep. I held up that coat, every one of those 37 times, with a certain flair that had the rest of the cast murmuring with envy. Duggan found the sleeves with no trouble at all, thanks to my talented coat-holding-up.

Those 37 takes were spread out over many hours. In between, many things were going on, as they usually are on location. The Mexican extras found a small bull and some of them practiced passes. Others kicked a soccer ball around. The American crew tossed a football back and forth. Robert McQueeney, a golfer of near-pro talent as well as an actor, practiced his swing. He was wearing a colonel's outfit and a goatee, and it all looked a bit odd.

Harve Presnell interested the Mexicans in a game. He found an eight-pound sledge and invited them to try to pick it up by the handle. They didn't know the trick, so only Harve and one of the American crew managed the stunt.

For a time, the actors excitedly planned a greased pig contest for the next Sunday. Pigs and goats roamed wild over the location — a drained swamp at the edge of the Tunal Riber, full of huge, cypress-like trees the Mexicans called sabinos — and so they had the raw material for the greased pig contest.

"First," said Peter Brec, "everybody gets drunk."

"Yeah," added Wayne Rogers, "and you'd better get the pig drunk, too."

Around 11 in the morning, two enterprising girls from town peddled hot soup — a chicken broth with raw onions or chili peppers or both. Then, at 1:30, there was a luncheon break. The caterer had box lunches or hot lunches, but most of the box lunches were gone, vanished into (so the angry crew insisted) the trunks of the Mexican extras' cars.

Lunch was followed by a very short siesta — 20 minutes at the most. Duggan, Breck and James Caan played bridge. The crew had a hot hearts game going. I overheard some bit players in a serious discussion of whether horseback riding or swimming makes women more passionate.

Suddenly, the quiet was broken by the happy laughter of the Mexicans. One of their number had spied something moving in a sabino tree, scampered up nimbly and came back holding a young oppossum by the tail. Soon they had put a rope around his neck and were trying to make him dance.

Then it was back to work. I put on Andy Duggan's coat a dozen more times. When you see "The Glory Guys," watch for me. I'm the one who steals the picture.

Racial Equality Group Assails Mississippi Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congress of Racial Equality today labeled the contested election last month of five Mississippi representatives as the "No. 1 item of business" facing the 89th Congress.

In endorsing the election challenge initiated by the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party, James Farmer, national director of CORE, said "this is not a frivolous gesture. We're in dead earnest."

He said the 200 CORE chapters have been urged to ask their congressmen "to take a firm stand on the challenge." By this, Farmer said he meant a vote favoring a resolution to block the swearing in of any House members from Mississippi until the challenge is resolved.

"We will try to see that no congressman will be able to hide behind anonymity," Farmer said. "We will ask a roll-call vote."

Rep. William F. Ryan, D N.Y., has promised to introduce the resolution on Jan. 4, the day Congress convenes.

Farmer said he anticipates the support of House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., but that the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party has received no commitment from him.

Lawrence Guyot, chairman of the party's executive committee, told the same news conference that three of his party's claimants to Mississippi House seats will attempt to gain access to the House floor on Jan. 4.

Both he and Farmer said it will be a "nonviolent, peaceful and orderly" attempt.

Defective Merchandise Is Reported in Russia

MOSCOW (UPI)—Officials of two Soviet factories have been fined the equivalent of $17,22[illegible] for turning out defective merchandise, the Soviet press reported today.

News of the stern measure came as the Kremlin lowered the boom on plants turning out shoddy consumer goods, warning that unsold articles would be their responsibility.

Clothing factory officials in the central Asian republic of Kazakhstan were fined $6,222 for making defective jackets, trousers and overalls, the newspaper Kazakhstan Pravda reported.

A fur coat and hat plant was slapped with an $11,000 penalty for turning out defective items at a rate of about 20 per cent.

Criminal actions were instituted against both factories as well as against another plant that turns out musical instruments and chess sets and a bread plant—for making poor quality candy.

NAGOYA — More firms in Cental Japan are planning to switch to heavy industry.

14 New Factories Opened in Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana Radio said Sunday night 14 factories representing a total investment of 38 million pesos had been opened in Cuba this year. A peso is officially pegged at a dollar but brings much less on the open market.

The largest, according to the broadcast monitored here, is a 13-million-peso electrical appliance plant in Santa Clara.
